Welfare change requires aid recipients to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee agreed today to require that the federal minimum wage be paid under state programs designed to force welfare recipients to earn their benefits.

In approving the "workfare" provision Thursday on an 8-3 vote, the committee had agreed to allow either the local prevailing wage or the state minimum wage, whichever is higher.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, DLa., chairman of the panel, proposed today that the federal minimum wage be paid.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, RNeb., objected, contending that state officials who operate the welfare job programs are not inhuman.

"Well, I don't like to be called inhuman myself," Long replied, and the committee approved his proposed change.

The committee approved the workfare or "work-off" project as part of a package of changes in the welfare laws.

Under that proposal, state or local welfare officials would be allowed to require adults receiving aid under the huge Aid to Families with Dependent Children program to pay for their benefits by working at a variety of jobs. These could range from cleaning up parks and public facilities to helping in public child-care centers.

All such jobs would have to meet health and safety standards, the provision says, and would have to serve a useful purpose.

Localities could not use welfare recipients in jobs that would displace other workers doing jobs at normal wages, according to the welfare provision.

The AFDC program provides money to support mothers and, in some cases, unemployed fathers, of dependent children. Backers of the "work off" proposal estimate there could be as many as two million recipient adults who could be put to work by the provision if every state were to adopt it.

Backers of the proposal say the idea of the plan is to get welfare recipients into the habit of working.

But the provision was sharply criticized by welfare organizations and is opposed by the Carter administration, which blocked an effort to tie the package to a measure aimed at bailing out the financially troubled Social Security system.

Leonard Lesser of the Center for Community Change said welfare recipients shouldn't be forced to take such jobs.

"Just because they happen to be poor, they shouldn't be treated like second-class citizens. They should be given jobs at the same wage as anyone else," he said.

The administration opposes the provision partly because of fears the jobs offered to AFDC recipients would be of little lasting value and because the plan contains no provisions for meaningful job training.

OUR 68TH YEAR — SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1977 — NUMBER 183

Investment from bill to be discussed here

State Treasurer James I. Spainhower is to be in Sikeston, Tuesday, to promote approval of a bill authorizing the treasurer to establish an investment pool for funds deposited by local governmental units.

Spainhower is to be at the Holiday Inn, at 2:30 p.m., to discuss this and other topics with area reporters.

The proposed amendment, which is known as Senate Joint Resolution 19, will be presented on the statewide ballot in the November, 1978, general election. Overwhelming approval was given the measure earlier this year after it was introduced in the State Legislature.

Provisions of the proposed amendment would authorize the Office of State Treasurer to create an investment pool for funds deposited by local governmental units. Such units would include city and county governments, road, water, sewer, hospital, school and fire protection districts.

Senate Joint Resolution 19 was introduced in the State Legislature at the request of Spainhower, who had studied the success of local investment pools authorized in other states.

Spainhower says, "Generally, local governmental units have only small amounts of surplus revenue available for investment. as a result, these small funds often are not used to produce additional revenues because they will not earn significant interest.

"The establishment of an investment pool for voluntary participation would provide a means of combining small funds for a larger revenue- producing deposit. In addition, local governmental units would have access to investment and financial counseling services provided by the Office of State Treasurer.

"Revenues earned by the pool would be paid back to a contributing governmental unit on a prorated scale based on the amount of the individual investment. The concept of such a pool has been tried successfully in Oregon and Minnesota. It has proven to be an additional source of revenue that would work well in Missouri and lighten the load of taxpayers in financing public services."

Suicide attempt fails this morning at K's

A public safety officer and another man helped prevent a suicide this morning when a 26-year-old ex-employe of K's Massage Parlor cut her wrist with a razor blade at the parlor, 223 W. Trotter St.

Public safety officers said Gala Parden, who has been living in the parlor since it closed, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment after she cut her wrist with a razor blade about 1 a.m.

When he arrived, Officer Steve Rogers found Mrs. Parden being held still by a man identified as Tom Tompkins. Mrs. Parden was bleeding from a cut about one and a half inches long.

Rogers wrapped the woman's wrist in a towel and had her put pressure on the cut until the ambulance arrived.

Tompkins told Rogers the woman had been drinking and was upset over losing her job at the parlor. The parlor closed about Sept. 1.

Rogers said Mrs. Parden was living in the office along with her five children, her sister, and four other children.

The officers said the children were all sleeping in one room on a pallet on the floor. He said the office was dirty, unorderly and smelled.

CBs, tools reported stolen

Three thefts from trucks were reported today by the Public Safety Department.

All three thefts were discovered early Thursday morning.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is giving President Carter approval to produce the neutron bomb, a new atomic weapon that opponents fear will greatly increase the risk of allout nuclear war.

The House of Representatives on Thursday approved an authorization bill to enable the President to spend money for the neutron bomb if he chooses to do so. The Senate previously approved a similar bill.

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

Carter has not announced whether he intends to approve production of the controversial weapon, but he did ask for the authorization that both houses have now granted.

The key House vote came on an amendment by Rep. Ted Weiss, D+N.Y. The amendment would have blocked Energy Research and Development Administration money from being used for the neutron bomb. But the amendment was defeated 297 to 109.

Weiss and his supporters said the neutron bomb would "lower the threshold" to nuclear war. They said military leaders might feel less inhibited about using the neutron bomb since it has less destructive power than large-scale nuclear weapons. That could make it easier to introduce nuclear weapons into an altercation that could touch off a nuclear holocaust, opponents said.

"I am frightened to death of this weapon," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D+Calif. "Once you start down the road to a nuclear war, there is no turning back. Once we make nuclear war thinkable, we make it possible, and once we make it possible we make it inevitable."

But supporters of the weapon said the neutron bomb is preferable to conventional nuclear weapons since it is less destructive to property.

Doctors talk of cancer 'cure'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cancer specialists say major progress in treating forms of leukemia with a combination of drugs has "solidified" the concept that other forms of cancer can be cured with chemicals.

The term "cure" was used repeatedly by researchers on Thursday at a National Conference on the Lymphomas and the Leukemias as they discussed results in both childhood and adult leukemias (blood cancer), and Hodgkin's Disease, a cancer of the lymph system.

Most of the credit is given to using combinations of drugs, a technique begun about 10 years ago.

Results since then "have solidified the concept we can cure cancers with chemicals," said Dr. Vincent J. De Vita, Jr. director of the Division of Cancer Treatment of the National Cancer Institute. The Institute and American Cancer Society are sponsoring the conference.

"Now we have the tools" to apply similar techniques to more common cancers, such as the breast and colon, Dr. De Vita said.

He said it is too early to tell if drugs plus surgery will have the same beneficial impact on breast cancers.

"Believers in drugs have used the word cured. We are using it more often now. Some people are living as long as those who had no cancer," Dr. De Vita said.

When former leukemia patients live long enough to have their own families and normal lives, "it is splitting hairs not to call them cured," said Dr. David J. Galton of the Royal Postgraduate Medical School, London, England. "We are possibly beginning to see the same upswing in other forms of cancer."

Thirty years ago, the average survival rate for children with acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL) was only two months. Now, for 50 per cent it is five years, with many living and well far longer, said Dr. Emil Frei III of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Boston.

Dr. Joseph V. Simone of Stanford University and Dr. Donald Pinkel of Milwaukee Children's Hospital told of a group of more than 100 children with ALL who are in remissions, apparently well, three to 10 years after drug treatment was stopped. "I think they are fairly safe now," Dr. Simone said.

Filibuster threatens debt bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate deadlock over natural gas prices is threatening to block action on a crucial debt ceiling measure, leaving the government without the authority to borrow money and pay its bills.

Leaders of a filibuster aimed at stopping efforts to lift federal price controls on natural gas switched tactics Thursday and took aim at the debt ceiling bill in an effort to force a Senate vote on a gas-pricing compromise.

The new development came shortly before the Senate adjourned late Thursday night after efforts to reach agreement on the natural gas legislation fell through.

One of the leaders of the filibuster, Sen. James Abourezk, D+S.D., objected when Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd asked to temporarily set aside the energy bill for a vote on the debt ceiling legislation.

If the debt ceiling bill is not passed by Saturday morning, the beginning of the new fiscal year, the government will lose its authority to borrow money to pay its bills.

But terms under which the Senate is debating the gas bill prohibit interruptions for action on any other legislation without unanimous consent.

Abourezk acknowledged that in refusing to approve a temporary delay in debate his action had the effect of holding the debt ceiling bill hostage to the natural gas legislation.

"We won't let it come up. It's a form of leverage," Abourezk said.

And he said he plans to continue to block a vote on the debt ceiling unless the Senate dumps the proposal to free natural gas prices from federal control in favor of a compromise proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D+Wash. The compromise has the support of the Democratic leadership.

Jackson's proposal would allow gas prices to rise more than President Carter wants but it would not remove price controls as Republicans and oilstate Democrats advocate.

Sen. Howard H. Metzenbaum, D+Ohio, who had joined Abourezk in waging the filibuster against the gas deregulation effort, supported Abourezk's move to hold the debt ceiling bill hostage.

The House voted on Wednesday to set a debt ceiling of $773 billion through next September and the Senate Finance Committee approved the figure of $754 billion through next April 30.

Efforts to reach agreement on a natural gas compromise collapsed Thursday in a parliamentary tangle, leaving the Senate almost as deeply divided over this portion of the President's energy program as when debate began nearly two weeks ago.

Despite Carter's exhortation Thursday in a nationally televised news conference that inaction invites crisis, the Senate is stymied by the two competing proposals. Support appears to be almost evenly divided between the two plans and those on both sides were chasing after the votes of wavering senators.

Byrd spent the day shuttling between opposing camps in an unsuccessful quest for an agreement, then adjourned the Senate, saying he sees no chance of resolving the controversy before Saturday at the earliest.

A MOVING EXPERIMENT

Considering the sad state of so many American cities, it's not surprising that the federal government is looking for a clean, simple way to move people around congested downtown areas.

Four cities — Cleveland, Los Angeles, Houston and St. Paul, have been chosen to experiment with new people-mover systems, and the experiments will be well worth the money invested if they can reduce traffic and air pollution in the heart of town.

People movers, for those who missed those old Flash Gordon serials on Saturday afternoons, are light, quiet, driverless vehicles that glide from station to staion on their own (often elevated) guideways. They don't interfere with pedestrians and they don't compete with cars and buses.

Cleveland, for example, hopes to use a two-mile people-mover system as a way of connecting rapid transit stations and parking lots with other downtown points.

There is plenty of hard-nosed skepticism — in Cleveland and elsewhere — about the people-mover idea. And perhaps that's a healthy thing. A people mover now operating at West Virginia University in Morgantown has been, in many ways, an expensive disappointment.

But the people-mover concept has been carried out successfully at a number of large airports, including Tampa, Miami, Seattle and Dallas. And there is reason to believe it can be adapted to the needs of cities as well.

Two years ago the U.S. Department of Transportation threatened to cut off mass transit funds for major cities unless they did something about reducing downtown traffic congestion.

For some cities, the people mover may not be an attractive or even a practical solution. For others, it could be a useful step in the right direction.

LOOK, YOU MAY LIKE IT

Personally, we like the looks of our Missouri State Highways since the highway department adopted the policy of mowing only a few feet back from the pavement and allowing the banks and the rest of the right-of-way to stay in a natural state.

Instead of being manicured from fence to fence those unmowed plots now show dozens of varieties and millions of wild blossoms almost everywhere you look in Monroe County.

Maybe it does appear a little more ragged than it did when the department mowed it all, but our guess is the travelers from other areas will appreciate the beauty that they can now see along our highways, and by doing so, better appreciate Missouri.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — It's now 10 years since Teamsters' general president Frank Fitzsimmons began to sit comfortably in the big seat in Jimmy Hoffa's office in their marble palace down the street. Today, he and his colleagues are busier than centipedes stuck in a flypaper factory. The profundity of this simile I soon will evidence.

Never has one union been such a concentrated target of so many investigations and revolts. But there's more here than the Pilgrim's Progress of the oft irascible Fitzsimmons who believes that the media is responsible for all his and his Brotherhood's troubles.

The probes, national, state and local, and the rebellions against the union hierarchy, inside and out, may splinter the massive organization and thus grind much of this nation's industrialism and warehousing to a turtle's pace in a year or so more.

Federal authorities report there are at least "40 or 50" ongoing investigations into the Brotherhood and many of its funds and activities "of all sorts" -- by the Securities and Exchange Commission, local and county prosecutors, various sections of the Labor Department, several Justice Department anti-crime strike forces, a special Criminal Division unit, "many" IRS teams, the FBI, U.S. attorneys and State prosecutors (especially in New York and New Jersey). Not to mention a number of investigative reporters now typewriter- deep in behalf of the union's internal opposition.

As one piquant source said the other day, "I will not (repeat not) talk to you in gernalities, I will talk at random."

Somehow, for example, a 35-year-old Allen Glick got himself to be the Teamster's Chicago-based pension fund's biggest borrower. He got $150 million. Now, you just don't get that kind of money from the fund without clout. And little Glick of San Diego didn't start with much muscle. Still with Teamsters pension money he got to be one of Las Vegas' biggest gambling casino- hotel tycoons. You just don't get "in" Las Vegas. The way has to be greased by someone who can rule on territories, cuts, skims, etc.

Authorities aren't yet disclosing any evidence of Glick's shady connections on that strip where it takes a wave of the hand by someone like "Fat" Tony Salerno of the Genovese crime family to grant someof the action. So the SEC wants to know all about Glick's interlocked corporations, their "paper" and what the Teamsters' big pension fund actually got for its $150 million loans. This fund must live by SEC rules, too.

And, say Labor Department investigators, they too want to know all about Glick's luck. Which leads us to a fascinating remark by Labor Secretary Marshall which appears to have gone unnoticed in print or on the tube.

"At this time," said Marshall some weeks ago, "our investigative activity is shifting from a review of fund (Teamsters') records and documents to a search for evidence in the possession of others such as individuals associated with the fund. Much of what we discovered in the asset management phase of our investigation will be relevant to this second phase. In addition we have periodically turned over to the Justice Department evidence that may warrant prosecution under federal criminal statutes.

"We continue to do this as we proceed with the second phase of our investigation."

All this, and more, is churning behind the scenes. So, I'll pass swiftly over Glick and the IRS charge that he owes some $9.5 million in back taxes and fraud penalties. And just as quickly, over reports of internal feuds among the Brotherhood's national leaders as well as the coming battle between Eastern Teamster titans over the newly legitimatized casinos and hotel jurisdiction in burgeoning Atlantic City – Las Vegas East.

It's all whirlpooling just below the surface at the very moment when lawyers for Prod, the rebel teamsters organization which is a modernized counterpart of Miners for emocracy, and attorneys for Fitzsimmons are negotiating what charges the rebels will be permitted to bring against Fitz before the Brotherhoods' International Executive Board. If there's no agreement on this Kafka - like trial of Fitzsimmons before his own peers, comrades and kingmakers, Prod plans to take it all into federal court.

Followed in by the media, of course. Charges do not (repeat not) a guilty one make -- but they do make headlines.

Meanwhile, the old truck fleet owners front which had so many intimate ties with Teamsters officials has split. Some of the biggest and most powerful corporations in the Trucking Employers, Inc. (TEI) have broken away from the coordinated bargaining group and are creating Carrier Management, Inc.

The corporate dissidents say they've been surrendering too much to the union's over-the-road haulers in the Master Freight agreements. And that they're weary of paying $25,000 a year per driver "for in-city work."

What's crucial here is that there will be splintered regional bargaining when the natural contract expires in March 1979. Previous national bargaining agreements originally put together by Jimmy Hoffa long before he went astral, cover some 400,000 drivers in the inner gut of American commerce.

It's all coming together sooner than we think. Pressures from the inside and warfare on the outside could cripple the massive union -- and the nation -- in the next 18 months. Just watch the wheels spin.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Defense Secretary Harold Brown stated recently that the Soviets are building four new types of intercontinental ballistic missiles, but he doesn't know "why the Soviets are pushing so hard to improve their strategic nuclear capabilities."

At a congressional hearing in February, 1969, Defense Secretary Malvin Laird was asked why the Soviets were engaged in a massive buildup of strategic weapons, especially their huge 25-megaton SS-9 super-missle.

He responded with a valid and commonsense explanation: "The Soviets are going for a first- strike capability. There is no question about that."

Our nation's top policymakers, who were then President Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, did not agree with Laird's assessment of Soviet intentions. No one has ever revealed what sort of reprimand was administered behind closed doors but, shortly thereafter, Laird changed his tune. The next time he was asked the same question, he meekly replied that it was not his function to interpret Soviet intentions.

If it is not the function of the secretary of defense to interpret the meaning of a huge buildup by the Soviets of nuclear weapons that are capable of incinerating scores of millions of Americans, then whose is it?

Nixon and Kissinger admitted that the answer was beyond them.

In the 1972 State of the World Report, issued under Nixon's name but admittedly written by Kissinger, they "made it perfectly clear" with an unambiguous assertion: "We cannot know the intentions of Soviet leadership."

The evidence is overwhelming that Laird was correct in his original explanation of why the Soviets are building huge strategic weapons. The megatonnage of their missile force is now estimated as at least ten times greater than ours. The Soviet SS-9, for example, has 25 times the megatonnage of our Minuteman missile.

But assuming that Brown is truthful when he says he doesn't know why the Soviets are building four new ICBMs, then the only rational U.S. course of action is to base our defense on Soviet capabilities rather than on their intentions.

That means building a defense posture superior to Soviet weapons, rather than speculating as to how they intend to use them.

The four new ICBMs the Soviets are building all have a greater throw-weight than those they are replacing. Three have MIRV warheads.

Yet the U.S. response has been to ignore Soviet capabilities as well as intentions. In the last several months, Brown has halted production of our Minuteman III ICBM and terminated a related program to improve the accuracy of our Minuteman II. President Carter announced his surprise decision to halt production of the B-1 bomber. Our Navy today has fewer ships than at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, and there are no plans for any significant additions.

If Brown doesn't understand Soviet intentions, and has chosen to ignore Soviet capabilities, then our only recourse is to invite the American people to join the decision- making process.

One of the outstanding military writers in the country, Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Black, U.S. Army (Ret.), urged open public discussion in a recent article that won second prize in the annual Institute of Naval Proceedings Essay Contest. He suggests a review of our national strategy by the National security Council in private sessions to be conducted concurrently with a congressional review in open hearings.

The synthesis could be a national policy that would meet our national security requirements of the coming decade, and also have the support of the American people.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

More On a Tin-Medal Tyrant

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unmilitary bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and medals.

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father, Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

He uses the political machinery to keep his people in line. No one, for example, is permitted to hold a government job unless he is a member of Somoza's political party, the Nationalist Liberal Party.

As evidence of their political allegiance, party members carry a membership card widely known as 'La Rosadita," or the little pink card. The more irreverent call it "La Magnifica," after the prayer card which Catholics carry as protection from unknown dangers.

La Rosadita is the key to government employment. Ministers and managers, truck drivers and garbage collectors alike must produce their little pink card before they are put on the government payroll.

Under the Somoza system, the obligations of a public servant are unique. They are expected in addition to their governmental duties to attend Somoza's parades and speeches and to hail their chief with compulsory cheers. In the past, they were actually required to report to their places of employment and punch time clocks before a parade. Then they were bused or trucked like cattle to the appointed location.

Government employees must also kick back part of their pay to finance the party. Each payday, five percent of their gross salary is automatically deducted from their paychecks for party dues. The money is used to pay for rallies, parties and anything else Somoza chooses to charge to the party.

A decade ago, while Somoza's brother Luis was president, the government was reorganized into a system strikingly similar to the communist system the Somozas denounce. Hundreds of "cantons" were created at the local level, giving the Somozas a tighter grip on the populace down to the grassroots.

The canton leaders are expected to know everyone in their jurisdictions. Almost all government services – roads, schools, permits, licenses – are administered through the cantons. Thus it is impressed upon the peasants that if they expected to live a trouble-free life, they must jump when the government so orders.

So today, when Somoza needs a large crowd to cheer him, he merely passes the word and the local leader rounds up the required number of bodies. As an inducement, Somoza turns on the party money valve and a flow of cash trickles down to the cantons.

The canton leaders, of course, help themselves to the biggest share. But all the way down the line, the other organizers take their cuts. There is little left for the peasants who pour out of the buses. Usually, each peasant is presented with a little banner to wave and a glass of "guaro" – rotgut liquor produced by the government – to wash away his doubts and ease his burdens.

Some readers may ask why we would spend five months investigating an obscure dictator of no consequence beyond his own borders. In recent years, the American people have found themselves uncomfortably allied with a host of two-bit tyrants. They have been recruited into the U.S. bloc by the power brokers in Washington.

Anastasio Somoza is the epitome of these petty tyrants – a bemedaled, beer-bellied potentate who has developed an epoxylike bond with Washington. He toes the U.S. line at the United Nations. He allowed the CIA to use his country as the staging base for the Bay of Pigs invasion. He is the darling of the Pentagon.

As the price for Somoza's friendship, the United States has provided the economic and military support that has kept his family in power. This has brought about the Americanization of Anastasio Somoza. He even spurns the Spanish language, preferring instead the American slang he learned as a student at West Point. He has become a foreigner in his own land.

Somoza rules a country bedeviled by oppressive heat and humidity. The human birth rate is as high as the productivity is low. Most Nicaraguans are born into poverty; they toil for some of the lowest wages in the Western hemisphere. The average hourly pay is barely 30 cents.

Yet their ruler is estranged from them; more accurately, he has insulated himself from their problems. He has a low opinion of his people and, according to one source, "doesn't believe the country can be developed through the Nicaraguan people." It is a disdain, Nicaraguans tell us, that the people reciprocate.

The decision to support Somoza and other dictators like him is a national disgrace and an abrogation of America's historic commitment to champion democracy throughout the world.

Footnote: Our associate Joe Spear has sought the comments of the Nicaraguan embassy. We have waited several days. We will be happy to publish the comments when they are received.

Todays News In Brief

Bodies of GIs to leave Hanoi

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — In the glare and sweltering heat of Vietnam's afternoon sun American soldiers and sailors today lifted the remains of 21 American servicemen and a civilian into the belly of a military cargo plane that would take them home for the last time.

The servicemen had died during the Vietnam war that ended in April 1975 and their remains were being turned over to the United States after long negotiation by the Vietnamese Communists.

After the brief ceremony, Vu Hoang of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said: "We have cooperated closely on these humanitarian matters. We need to settle the past perfectly, so we can have good and sound basis for establishing normal relations between the two countries."

The joint mission of the U.S. Defense and State departments was the fifth to Hanoi to accept the remains of Americans killed in the Indochina war.

Frank Sieverts, coordinator for prisoner-of-war and missing-in-action affairs for the State Department, said the names will be released only when the army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii confirms the identities.

French jetliner hijacked

PARIS (AP) — A hijacker shot and wounded a stewardess and commandeered a French jetliner with 107 persons aboard today, forcing it to return to Paris' Orly airport, where he demanded to broadcast a message to France, authorities said.

The gunman — described as about 45 years old, big, blond and blue-eyed — quickly freed the wounded stewardess and six passengers from the Air Inter Caravelle, which had been bound for Lyon on a domestic flight. Officials said the stewardess was not badly hurt.

The pilot radioed the control tower that the hijacker, said to be armed with a grenade and pistol, wanted to broadcast a message over Radio Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte Carlo and threatened to execute a passenger if the request was not granted.

Newsmen from the two private stations, which direct their broadcasts principally at France, were standing by to make the recording.

But it was reported that local officials negotiating with the hijacker insisted on first knowing the contents of the 12-minute message and the hijacker replied that everything he had to say was in the message, including the fate of the passengers and the destination he hoped to reach.

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Hijackers holding a Japan Air Lines DC8 jet released four more hostages today as Japanese officials rounded up prisoners in Japan and $6 million to meet the terrorists' ransom demands.

Bangladesh Foreign Secretary Dobraki Hussain said negotiations were going well. But other officials said the five gunmen were growing irritable and short-tempered in the third day of the siege and were communicating less with the outside.

These officials also said the terrorists had not been told that one of their demands would not be fully met — three of the nine prisoners in Japanese jails whose freedom the hijackers demanded have refused the offer to leave.

Japanese officials said the ransom flight Saturday would arrive here more than seven hours after the hijackers' latest deadline and would carry no more than six of the prisoners.

The Bangladesh officials said it was not known whether the hijackers, said to be members of the ultraleftist Japanese Red Army, were willing to extend their deadline once again.

The latest hostage release brought to nine the number of passengers freed since the plane was seized Wednesday.

Foreclosures ordered halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has issued orders to the Farmers Home Administration to take all steps possible to halt real estate foreclosures on lowincome farm families for the remainder of this year.

The FHA is the Agriculture Department's main lending agency to help low-income people buy or enlarge farms. It also handles other programs, including loans and grants, to help other rural people buy or improve homes, start small businesses and carry out community development projects.

Although not officially announced, sources said Thursday that directives are expected to be sent soon to state and local offices of the nationwide agency. One said that Bergland "gave a direct order" to FHA to take all possible steps to head off farm loan foreclosures at least through the remainder of 1977.

An aide to Bergland confirmed that the order had been passed to the agency but said that FHA "will not necessarily issue a blanket" halt to all foreclosures. Flagrant cases still may involve foreclosures, he said.

According to the sources, Bergland is alarmed that the current low prices of many farm commodities and a precipitous drop in net farm income from the record levels of a few years ago could have a disastrous effect on many of the low-income families who are buying farms through FHA financing.

Vance pursues peace talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance holds talks today with Foreign Ministers Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union and Moshe Dayan of Israel in an effort to convene a new Mideast peace conference. Officials from the Soviet Union are being briefed regularly by high-level Carter administration officials on prospects for Arab+Israeli negotiations.

Diamond mystery broadens

CHICAGO (AP) — A broker is reported missing with up to $300,000 in gems from New York's diamond district, and his relatives say they fear he has been killed. Police in New York already are investigating the murder of another merchant from the famed diamond center and the disappearance of a fortune in diamonds. Abraham Shafizadeh has been missing since since July 27, the day before he left for Puerto Rico on business, his relatives said. They say police have suggested that the disappearance is linked to organized crime.

Scientists to sample iceberg

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — As scientists ponder the use of icebergs at a conference in Iowa next week, they will be watching their subject melt in their cocktail glasses. Wet-suited divers planned to slip into the icy waters of a lake at the foot of Alaska's Portage Glacier south of here today to commandeer a 2,500-pound ice slab from a floating glacial iceberg. The ice will be used at the First International Conference on Iceberg Utilization at Iowa State University Sunday through Thursday. Representatives of 18 nations are expected to attend.

Abortion compromise eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise that would expand the use of tax money for abortions while dropping a controversial "medical necessity" provision is under study in the House. The Senate compromise was offered to get the abortion issue through a House+Senate conference committee. The committee scheduled another meeting for Monday after failing to reach agreement in a three-hour session Thursday.

Only Senate need vote on treaty, Bell says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell argued today that the Carter administration need not submit the Panama Canal treaty to the House as well as the Senate before the Panamanian government can be given control of the Canal Zone.

Bell quoted U.S. Supreme Court opinions dating well into the last century and read from the original debates at the constitutional convention in 1787 to counter claims of treaty opponents that only the full Congress — including the House — can approve the cession of U.S. territory.

The pending treaty would cede the 10-mile-wide U.S. Canal Zone to the Republic of Panama and turn the canal itself over to Panamanian ownership and control in the year 2000.

The House will be asked to pass specific legislation implementing the treaty, including bills to organize a new Panama Canal Commission and to adjust the jurisdiction of U.S. courts and law enforcement during the 30-month transition period called for in the treaty.

Jorden said the United States cannot best achieve its goal of maintaining the canal open, efficient, safe and neutral by being "inflexible and bullheaded" and by adopting "simplistic formulas like 'it's ours and we're going to keep it.'"

"No waterway or road, no military base or business, can long remain open and efficient if it is surrounded by a sea of public hostility and resentment," the ambassador said.

Jorden said the issue of the Canal Zone unifies the Panamanian people like no other.

"You will find that whether they are rich or poor, city men or campesinos, university graduates or day laborers, they are as one in their dream of a Panama that is unified and sovereign, a country that is no longer divided in half by a foreign enclave," the ambassador said.

He said the main issue is not the canal but rather the Canal Zone.

"It is an area over which Panama — the country in which it is located — has absolutely no control of any kind," he said. "If a Panamanian is caught speeding or is involved in an accident, he gets a ticket from a foreign policeman. If the offense is serious enough, he is tried in a foreign court, under a foreign code of laws."

Desloge grocer pays major crime costs

Special to the Daily Standard
By Don Keough
Of the Columbia Daily Tribune

DESOLAGE — Wayne Long is a victim of crime against property. He stands today with the shattered dream of a 20-year effort. He is paying off a nearly $100,000 debt as the direct result of a firebombing and then a dynamite bombing of his new supermarket.

And as Waybne Long looks around, he sees little effective action being taken by law enforcement agencies to apprehend the person or persons who contracted with organized crime elements to put him out of business.

Long's story began in 1960. At that time, he purchased a small neighborhood supermarket in Desloge from his father.Thirteen years later, it was paid for; Long was ready to expand.

He leased a large building just off Highway 67 in Bonne Terre, about 60 miles south of St. Louis. Fourty years old at the time, Long began what he, his father, his wife, and five children had planned for more than a generation-operation of a major supermarket.

By June 13, Long's Bonne Terre operation was firebombed in the early morning hours. He closed his door for about five weeks to make repairs, eventually losing about 20,000 above what his insurance reimbursed.

Local and federal investigators turned up nothing. Long feared it would occur again.

But by November his business was back in full swing. On the 12th day of that month, again the early morning hours, police extimated that 150 sticks of dynamite were exploded against one of the outside walls of the supermarket, strategically placed opposite a steel safe on the inside Flying debris and steel destroyed the building and its contents.

The dynamite-bombing caught Long at a time when his inventory had been increased substantially for the holiday season. This time around, more than $70,000 of Long's losses were not covered by insurance.

Federal investigators moved in. The bombing obviously was the work of professionals. Long had not been threatened. He had no labor problems. No one had offered to buy. His records proved he was making a profit and his business was growing substantially. There was no indication whatever of any reason for insurance fraud. so that motive was ruled out early. The owner of the building also was cleared.

Federal sources say the motive eventually was narrowed to business competition.

Acting on information from an informant, federal investigators made their only arrests in the case some 18 months after the second bombing.

Ray Edward Warden and Gabriel Tyrone Weatherspoon were charged with bombing and conspiracy. The two also were accused of stealing 500 pounds of dynamite form the Georgia Marble Co. in Jefferson County.

Weatherspoon turned state's evidence. His charges were reduced to one count in exchange for testimony against Warden. The U.S. attorney's officeals agreed to prove Weatherspoon with a new identity when finally released from a federal penetentiary, where he's serving a five-year sentence, under protection.

Fred Buckles, an assistant U.S. attorney in St. Louis, recently told The Tribune there was and is no doubt in the minds of federal prosecutors that the Long bombing was a contract-that Warden and Weatherspoon were hired by unnamed parties.

Federal sources outside the U.S. attorney's office add that Weatherspoon was hired by Warden to assist in the dynamite theft and the bombing. Weatherspoon rode with Warden the night he collected payment. Weatherspoon federal sources say, had identified the house Warden entered, although Weatherspoon was not present when the money changed hands.

The key, then to the federal investigation was Warden. Interviewed recently by The Tribune at the state prison in Moberly, Warden confirmed that the bombing was a contract. He said he had no idea who Long was, "I had nothing against the guy," Warden said. "It was not a personal. It was business."

And Warden hastened to add that he had nothing to do with the initial firebombing of Long's supermarket, the crime on which no arrests have been made.

But now, as in the past, Warden is not saying who paid for the dynamite-bomboing.

Federal prosecutors concede they considered granting Warden immunity and forcing him to identify who contracted for thebombing. But clearly, they wanted Warden in jail for the crime.

"At the time, we also had four or five cards in our hand that could have led to further prosecution," Buckles said. But by the time the hand had been played out, Warden had been sentenced and the first chance for an immunity proceeding had passed the federal prosecutors by. Then each play of the "four or five" cards redulted in a bust.

Today, federal prosecutors say that the case is open still and that efforts continue to apprehend the person or persons who contracted for the Long bombing. But Buckles also concedes that no one from his office has talked with Warden since he was sent to state prison.

There were other federal miscalculations. The hoped for a maximum sentence to be levied against Warden after he entered pleas of guilty. They felt a long prison sentence would make Warden willing to talk at a later time in return for recommendations for an early parole.

But Warden received sentences totaling 15 years. During federal prodeedings, Warden also pleaded guilty to a state charge for an armed robbery of a Bonne Terre jewelry store. On that charge, he received a state sentence of 10 years. Federal Judge John Reagan recommended that the time Warden spent in state prisons would also count against his federal time.

Warden will be eligible this year for state parole.

Wayne Long's dream of success has dissolved into a small, street-corner grocery store in Desloge and thousands of dollars in debts. In 1974, Long's large Bonne Terre supermarket was bombed, leaving an embittered victim of crime in outstate Missouri.

The knowing silence of prison inmate Ray Edward Warden holds the only key to ending Wayne Long's nightmare. But federal investigators have made no attempts to question the hired bomber since he began serving time at the Moberly prison. (Photo by Alan Berner)

As a result of Reagan's sentencing, Warden conceivably could become eligible for federal parole at the same time. That's assuming he'll be handed over to federal authorities after release from state prison. State officials were surprised to learn-from the Tribune that Warden faced a federal prison sentence. No one had informed them. Buckles promised to correct that oversight.

Long feels there has been a remarkable lack of zeal in the federal prosecution. He believes the first round of action took place only after he had appealed to U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton. And now Long believes the case is being reviewed only because he had appealed to this newspaper for action.

Federal sources say the case was handled first as a personal project by the U.S. attorney for eastern Missouri Barry Short. It was handed over to Buckle after Short became involved heavily in the successful prosecution of former Missouri House Speaker Richar Rabbitt on extortion charges. But Buckles already had a caseload that probably could keep at least two men busy.

Other federal sources say outstate crimes against property take low priority to the U.S. attorney's efforts against organized crime in metropolitan St. Louis and against political corruption.

The Long bombing had received Short's personal attention only because of the case's extraordianry circumstances and because of the likely involvement of organized crime "middlemen."

"We like to show now and then that we are paying attention to outstate Missouri," said one federal source who asked not to be identified "for obvious reasons."

Bombing actually is a state, as well as a federal crime. But outstate law enforcement officials were happy to leave the matter to the federal government. Local enforcement agents lack the powerful prosecuting tool of immunity. And they don't command the investigative tools and manpower available to the federal government.

Today, Wayne Long is back in the Desloge neighborhood store where his family's grocery business began more than a generation ago. Only this time, he is making payment on a $100,000 debt. Because "someone out there" is still free and conceivably still able to hire another bomber, and because his assets are now fully mortgaged, Long is not able to obtain financial backing of a new store.

The insurance rates on even his old store rose after the bombing from $1,800 a year to $5,400. And he was only able to get that insurance coverage through the high-risk pool guaranteed by law.

Today, Wayne Long is not a happy man. He thinks something has gone wrong with the system.

The word vaccine came from a Latin word meaning "cow" because the first vaccine — for smallpox — was made from a substance from cows.

Wootens leaving First Assembly

The morning worship service Sunday will be the final one Pastor and Mrs. Loren Wooten will conduct for the First Assembly of God Church 306 S. Kinghshighway, prior to entering the evangelistic ministry.

The Rev. Mr. Wooten assumed the pastorate at First Assembly in May 1974. He previously had been the pastor from 1953 to 1959, and it was during that tenure that the present auditorium was built. The Wootens left here in 1959 to accept the pastorate of Berea Temple Assembly of God in St. Louis.

Prior to returning in 1974, the Rev. Mr. Wooten was serving as national evangelist field representative with his office in the assemblies of God national headquarters in Springfield. Along with this position he conducted revival crusades across the country, and the Wootens plan to enter this type ministry again.

After a planned crusade in Missouri they will go to Maryland, where they will stay until Christmas. Then they open in Bradenton, Fl., on Dec. 31.

After the Sunday morning worship service, the church plans a fellowship dinner as a time to say farewell to the couple.

After the fellowship dinner, their new home, a 31-foot travel trailer, will be dedicated just before the Wootens "pull" away

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 17. John the Baptist's Disciples

Jesus continued to teach and preach in the various cities. When John, who had been imprisoned, heard of his miraculous works and teachings, he sent two of his disciples to ask Jesus if he were truly the promised Messiah or if they should seek another.

"Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me." (Matthew 11:4-6)

"And, as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?...But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee." (Matthew 11:7-10)

Preparing for change

BENTON — No matter what your age now you will someday most likely face retirement and its adjustments. All of us have heard a businessman say, "I can't wait till I'm retired so I can go fishing when I please." But, in reality, what happens? This man cannot find anyone to accompany him to a favorite fishing hole. Or maybe he wishes he was back at work, in a routine, and being productive. All of a sudden his wife doesn't appreciate his constant advice and help in her kitchen.

This situation goes on and on, often repeating itself in many cases. Any person needs to feel productive, worthwhile, and important. Yet retired people are sometimes cut off from our busy world.

The key is seemingly a "be prepared" attitued. Being prepared for adjustments that go along with retirement is not any guarnatee for perfection, but it will make life more enjoyable. Preparation in all aspects of life should begin several years before possible retirement. Consider your financial situation, where you'll live, how you'll spend your time, etc. Seek out information pertaining to all of these topics

Talk about your feelings and adjustments required within your home and family. Beginning retired life is truly a passage which could turn into a crisis.

Look around for examples. There are many elderly people who are active in their communities, serving in organizations, doing volunteer work, in general loving life. Retirement can eventually happen to all of us, but how we cope and adjust to it is and individual matter.

Book lists area historical sources

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Janie Wright librarian at Southeast Missouri State University, has recently compiled a 51-page bibliography entitled "Sources of Missouri History and Genealogy in Selected Libraries of Southeast Missouri, according to Geoffery Roth, Kent Library director.

This booklet, a selected union list of library materials, was designed by George Pendergrass, University library coordinator for media services, and was printed by the University printing services.

Preparation of this bibliography was an outgrowth of several informal meetings among representatives of college, public, and school libraries in southeast Missouri during the past year. These meetings were held for the purpose of considering several possible cooperative library ventures, Roth said.

Martha Maxwell, director of the Cape Girardea Public Library, contributed a prepared list of the library's holdings on Missouri history. By informal agreement this list was expanded to include the holdings of 16 southeast Missouri area libraries including five from Cape Girardeau: Kent, Cape Girardeau Public, St. Vincent's College, Notre Dame High, and Central High.

Other participating libraries included Bollinger County, Current River Regional, Dunklin County, Mississippi County, Jackson Public, New Madrid County, Ozark Regional,Poplar Bluff Senior High, Riverside Regional, Sikeston Public and Three Rivers Community College.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader proves times haven't changed much

Dear Ann: I wasn't too crazy about your correspondents who referred to themselves as "The Girls." May I share with you a delightful quote from George Bernard Shaw, written a generation ago? It proves that nothing has changed.

Shaw noticed that the most tyrannical females are strongly opposed to women's rights. He said this:

"No fascinating woman ever wants to emancipate her sex. Her object is to gether power into the hands of Man, because she knows that she can govern him. She is no more jealous of his nominal supremacy that he himself is jealous of the strength and speed of his horse. Women disguise their strength as womanly weakness, their audacity as womanly timidity, their unscrupulousness as womanly innocence, their impunities as womanly defenselessness; simple men are duped by them, and subtle ones disarmed and intimidated. It is only the proud, straightforward women who wish, not to govern, but to be free..."

G.B.S. sure used a lot of two-bit words, didn't he? -- Proud Woman

Dear Woman: He sure did -- and if he were around today, he'd have to wear a crash helmet and a bullet-proof vest.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have not been getting along worth a damn for two years. I tried counseling (Sam wouldn't go) and was told by my doctor, my minister and my therapist to finish this marriage before it finishes me.

We have two children, five and seven years of age. We also have a German shepherd. Last night we were discussing the division of household goods. Many of the things we have belonged to Sam's mother and grandmother and he wants them -- which is all right with me. Out of the blue -- and in the presence of the children -- he blurted out, "I want to make it clear that I am keeping Gupper (the dog) and you can have the kids."

I always knew Sam was an insensitive clod but this really got to me. The children looked so rejected I broke down and bawled. Of course I planned on taking the children, but hearing him put it so bluntly right in front of them was too much. Comment, please. -- Tears In The Valley

Dear Val: What's there to say except good riddance? On Father's Day I hope Gupper sends Sam a nice card.

Dear Ann Landers: Since when is school supposed to be entertainment? Who decided school is only for football and driver training? As a teacher with 27 years of experience, I maintain that school is for learning.

Parents must teach their children to work. It cannot be done by teachers. It is appalling that so many high school graduates are functionally illiterate and unemployable.

Dear D.M.: I agree school is not supposed to be entertainment, but I always learned more and worked harder when I had teachers who were lively, tuned-in and turned-on. Long after I forget the date of the Battle of Hastings, I'll remember the philosophy and inspiration provided by my most insightful and interesting teachers.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Ali survives Shavers artillery; keeps championship on decision

NEW YORK (AP) — The way it looked on national television, it was all over after the 12th round. As many as 50 million people in the TV audience knew Earnie Shavers would lose. Muhammad Ali said he knew it.

Then, why didn't Shavers know it?

"I thought I was ahead. My corner told me I was ahead," Shavers said after losing his only shot at the world heavyweight title in a 15-round decision to Ali Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

"I threw a couple of pretty good shots, but I didn't hit him real hard. I was trying to save myself," said Shavers. "I didn't go after him because I thought he might have been faking it."

The simple fact of the matter was that after the 12th, the TV audience had been informed by NBC — which was revealing the referee's and judges' decision round-by-round — that Ali had eight check-marks on his side of the caard. Shavers' only chance was a knockout.

Over on Ali's side of the ring, they were keeping track. Trainer Angelo Dundee had arranged with Eddie Hrica, a Baltimore-area fight promoter, to shuttle between the dressing room TV set and ringside to keep tabs on how things were going.

No such arrangements had been made on Shavers' side of the ring, and no one in the Garden audience of 14,613 was aware of the cards. After some discussion, John F.X. Condon, head of Garden publicity, said it was decided not to transmit the NBC information to the live audience or to reporters. The New York State Athletic Commission had recommended against it as being possibly disruptive, Condon said.

"But we didn't tell Ali," Dundee said. "We didn't want him to know. He might have let up, and you can't do that against a guy like Shavers."

Ali, however, said he had been told at one point during the fight that he was ahead, and that he would have thought so anyway. He looked like a fighter trying to hang onto his lead in the 13th and 14th rounds, which went to Shavers on the cards of the two judges and the referee, Johnny LoBianco.

"I took some punches that would have knocked any man out," said Ali, his face swollen from the beating he had taken from Shavers, considered one of boxing's all-time hardest hitters.

"Hurt me? Yeah, he hurt me a couple of times," Ali said. "I was almost knocked out two or three times. I was out on my feet. But the experts told you right. I can take a punch ... I knew I had it won ... I am the greatest fighter of all time."

After the 12th round, the two judges' cards had Ali ahead 8-4, and LoBianco had it 8-3 with one even. That's when Shavers, who had never gone past 10 rounds in his career, came on strong.

Shavers won the 13th on four solid rights to Ali's head, while the champion danced, covered up and hardly threw a punch. The 14th went to Shavers in a more spectacular fashion.

Shavers came out swinging those lumberjack fists that have scored 19 first-round knockouts in 54 victories (52 knockouts in all). He caught Ali in the corner and a mighty right landed.

Ali's feet went out from under him, and the count on the auditorium loudspeaker went to "two" before LoBianco waved off the count, saying it was a slip. But Ali was in trouble.

"My corner told me I was three rounds ahead on points," said Shavers. "I knew Ali was hurt, but I couldn't tell whether he was faking it. He's good at that. He always fakes it when you hit him."

The 15th round — by which time Shavers was expected to have been showered, dressed and on his way back home to the farm in Warren, Ohio — was a slugfest. Not since Ali-Joe Frazier in Manila was there such a round in heavyweight boxing.

Ali had Shavers in the corner, pounding combinations, hooking off the jab, and Shavers was wobbling. Both fighters were exhausted. Shavers found one more punch, and it saved him from a knockout.

He threw a looping left that connected squarely with Ali's forehead. The punch still had enough to rock the champion — "It almost knocked me out," said Ali — and it bought Shavers time.

"Another 30 seconds, and I would have knocked him out," said Ali.

Purina buys the Arena

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralston Purina Co., owner of the St. Louis Blues National Hockey League team, has also purchased the Arena building as a home for the hockey club.

R. Hal Dean, chairman and chief executive of Ralston, told a news conference Thursday that $500,000 already has been spent to upgrade the building, which will now be known as the Checkerdome.

Dean said estimates are being sought to determine how much it would cost to air condition the building and turn it into an all-season facility. He said the firm is looking into the possiblity of moving a World Team Tennis franchise into the building.

Acquisition of the property from the Cousins Mortgage and Equity Investment Corp. of Atlanta cost about $8.8 million, Dean said.

Crippled Bulldogs and Espey-less Cats meet at Dexter tonight

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

The biggest job for the Sikeston Bulldogs tonight will be holding down the talented Dexter offense, which has scored points this season at an average over 30 per game. They'll have to do it without five defensive starters.

Linebacker Glynn Felton and defensive end Alfie White joined comrades Mike Lasater, Scott Heeb and John Greer on the Bulldog injury list for the Northern Division battle tonight with the offensive-minded Bearcats at Dexter.

Felton and White, who both start on offense as well as shining on defense, were victims of last week's 6-6 draw at Charleston. Felton suffered a banged up knee and will miss two more games besides the Dexter battle. White's knee injury is less serious but will keep him out of action this week.

Lasater and Heeb are on the comeback route from their injuries, but cornerback John Greer underwent surgery Wednesday on his knee. The senior will miss the rest of the season.

The injury epidemic in the SHS camp has forced head coach Terry Smith to do considerable lineup juggling to find his best available lineup for tonight's big test. Smith chose a sophomore, Terry Duncan, to inherit the vacancy at linebacker caused by Felton's problem. Junior Gary Leonard will replace Felton at his offensive halfback position.

White's injury won't cause as many headaches, however, largely because of the return of David Willis at defensive end. While Willis takes his old position again, Dwight Mills, who replaced him two weeks ago, will now get White's job temporarily. Senior Randy Meyers, a 202-pounder, replaces White at offensive tackle.

Meanwhile, Dexter coach Tom Thrower's troops will be relatively injury free. All-conference quarterback Lance Espey is the only casualty among the Bearcats for tonight's game.

Espey, who suffered a broken collarbone during the fourth quarter of last week's 36-7 win over Illmo-Scott City, will be out for at least this week and next week and probably more. The injury is scheduled to be re-examined in two weeks, at which time more will be known about when the southpaw passer can return to action.

But Thrower has a pair of capable replacements in senior Denny Jarrell and junior Jim Jarrell, who are not related to each other. Denny will get the starting nod on the basis of his limited varsity experience at QB as a sophomore, but Jim will see action, too. Thrower said he hopes to make a decision on who his number one signal caller will be on the basis of tonight's play.

Both Jarrells can and will put the ball up. "They're both average high school quarterbacks," Thrower pointed out, saying that only the presence of the talented Espey has kept them from playing.

Smith said he couldn't tell what the Bulldogs' attitude would be coming off last week's letdown at Charleston, where the Bluejays beat SHS every place but on the scoreboard. "But they'll play better than they did at Charleston," Smith promised.

Indians go for fourth straight

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Off to its best start since 1969, Southeast Missouri State University travels to Russellville, Ark., Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game with Arkansas Tech University.

The Indians go into the contest with a 3-1 record, their best start since they were 4-0 in 1969. Arkansas Tech is 1-2.

"On paper they have the best offense we are going to see this year," said Southeast Missouri State's head coach, Jim Lohr. "They have four or five guys on their team that can outrun anyone we've got. If both teams lined up for a 100-yard dash, the best we could finish would be fifth or sixth."

Providing most of that speed for the Wonder Boys will be sophomore running backs Garry Compton of Pine Bluff, Ark., and James Imes of Clemmons, N.C., and split end Theodis Williams, a senior from Little Rock, Ark.

Quarterbacking the Wonder Boys will be Sylvester Forrest, a freshman from Earle, Ark. Also a speedster, Forrest is a threat to run the ball. He has a strong throwing arm but seem to have a tendency to throw interceptions. He had three picked off in the Wonder Boys' opening season loss to the University of Arkansas -- Pine Bluff.

Coming off fine offensive performances last Saturday against the University of Evansville in a game which SEMO State won 27-22, will be running backs Jack Gokin and Bill White.

Gokin, a senior from St. Louis, ran for 130 yards in 15 carries and two touchdowns while White, a freshman from Rock Hill, picked up 71 yards in 15 carries. The Indians gained 276 yards on the ground against Evansville.

One element of the game which Lohr feels his team must improve on is defense, a disappointment in last week's game. "Last week they didn't play with any enthusiasm," the head coach said. "What we have to do against Arkansas Tech is beat them on the line of scrimmage," he added. "If some of that speed gets into our backfield, we may not have a chance to catch them."

Injuries may play a key role as the Tribe has six players on the injured list and one who is questionable.

Also sure to miss the game is flanker David Gross, a senior from Cape Girardeau, who left the Evansville game near the end of the first half. Gross has torn ligaments in his left knee and will have surgery Friday.

WASHINGTON — Offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray were ordered to report to the New England Patriots by next Tuesday or be declared ineligible for the remainder of the 1977 season.

The NFL Player-Club Relations Committee, after 12 hours of testimony and deliberation on a grievance brought by the league on behalf of the Patriots, found that there is "a binding, legally enforceable contract" between the players and the team. The two had left camp in the last week of the preseason in a dispute that started in 1974.

Gura hurls K.C. to 100th win

But as far as the rest of the Kansas City Royals are concerned, Gura is just the latest recipient of the Gong award.

"He's always been a good late-season pitcher," remarked Herzog after Gura, with last-inning relief help from Doug Bird, hurled the American League West champs to their 100th victory of the season with a 6-3 win over the California Angels.

"He's done a pretty good job spot-starting this year. He had a wild spell there, but overall he's done the job."

The left-handed Gura, 8-5, was making his first start since Aug. 4—and exactly one year after he gave the Royals their first division title with a 4-0 victory over the Oakland A's.

In control from the start, Gura retired the first 14 batters he faced before Dave Chalk blooped a single to center with two out in the fifth inning.

But the southpaw made himself the prime candidate for the Gong — the team award for the player who makes the most embarrassing play in a victory—when his pickoff throw in the eighth inning eluded first baseman Pete LaCock by at least 15 feet.

"It looks like the first time this year that I've got it," he sighed with a smile. "But I guess I might as well go all the way.

"I never even should have thrown over there. With a 6-1 lead, who cares what the runner is doing? It was a mental mistake. And I hate to make mental mistakes."

But it was one of the few mistakes the Royals, playing reserves all the way, made as they banged out 14 hits off Wayne Simpson, 6-12, and Balor Moore. Every starter in the Kansas City lineup got a hit, as the Royals built a 3-0 lead in the first and never trailed. Rookie Clint Hurdle led the offense with a solo home run and run-scoring single.

The triumph made the Royals the first major league team to reach 100 victories this season and enabled them to tie the New York Mets' record for most wins in one year by an expansion team.

"No. 100. We wanted to get it at home, not in Oakland," grinned Herzog, whose team had followed an eight-game winning streak by dropping four in a row to the lowly A's.

"We finally got over the top. But we could have done it out there. We should have won 102 by now."

Improving Tigers looking for first victory at Tempe

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Both winless Missouri and 20th-ranked Arizona State are hoping to "put it all together" when they clash Saturday night in a non-conference football game at Sun Devil Stadium, where a sellout crowd of 58,000 is expected.

Missouri, 0-3 and riddled by injuries at key positions, might be a little more desperate, but Arizona State, 2-0, is just as anxious.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio, a former assistant and collegiate player at ASU, has been pleased with both his offensive and defensive units this season, although never in the same game. Arizona State Coach Frank Kush has faced the same dilemma.

The Sun Devils enter this week's contest 3-point favorites, but Kush was complaining about the defense. As a matter of fact, Missouri's coaching staff wasn't too pleased with its defense, either.

ASU squeaked past Oregon State, 33-31, last Saturday night at home, although Kush said the "real disappointing factor was the defense."

The big question mark, according to Kush, is the defensive tackle positions."We try to do a lot of stunting, but the tackles are not getting into position to meet the offensive linemen who are going to block our linebackers," he said.

So, this week his staff put the tackles through some special drills in an effort to correct the problem.

"When we get them both (offense and defense) together we're going to be okay," said Kush. "But if some night they're both off, we're in for big trouble."

Even though the Missouri Tigers are off to their worst start since 1956, they've been making substantial progress.

SHS spikers topple EP for first victory

EAST PRAIRIE — After three consecutive losses, the ever-improving Sikeston girl's volleyball team won their first match via a two-out-of-three victory over East Prairie.

Dawn Hurley and freshman Rochelle Patterson were keys to the win according to coach Janie Merrick. Patterson, late of the junior varsity squad, was a pleasant surprise, especially in the spike category.

"We had more success in spikes than we'd ever had," said Merrick after the hard fought Sikeston win.

East Prairie knew they were going to have a battle on their hands after they pulled out an 18-16 first game win. The young spikers from SHS then came on to win the second game 16-14 and the match with a 15-11 triumph.

Even though the win was a big one, Merrick felt that her team "still had a lot of things to work on." Setting up for the spike was the greatest of these.

The junior varsity also went on to victory after a tough first game loss. East Prairie came up with a 15-13 win followed by a 15-3 Sikeston triumph. The young Bulldogs then won the rubber game of the match by a score of 15-6.

The volleyballers will be home for their next match against a scrappy crew from Bloomfield. The game will be played in the Sikeston Fieldhouse with a 6:30 p.m. tipoff time Monday evening.

Several members of The Daily Standard prognostication panel seem to be living charmed lives as the season reaches the halfway point. But four, maybe five, games promise to lower percentages this week because they are so hard to pick.

Our standings: Right Wrong Pct.

FORB	31	3	88
CHIEF	28	6	79
WHALE	25	9	72
ZIG	19	7	71

The veterans of the panel, the Forb and Chief, are running some 20 per cent ahead of their respective paces of a year ago. Whether the factors contributing to this success are based in experience or luck has been a topic of much discussion around the office on these past fall evenings. The rookies have no past predicting patterns to refer to, so we must deduce that this year is simply easier to pick than the past. (In actuality,the rookies are operating at a pace five to 10 per cent ahead of the marks recorded by the panel veterans in '76.)

CAPE CENTRAL AT PADUCAH-TILGHMAN -- A tough one to start with. The Tigers, with a win over Vianney, have established themselves as top contenders for the Northern title, along with Jackson and Poplar Bluff. Sophomore kicker Steve Williams has proved to be an outstanding asset to his team. His 40-plus punting average kept the Vianney troops in trouble throughout last week's game. The grit and determination of the Tigers may be enough (Zig thinks so), but the others don't think so.

CHIEF: Paducah by 14,
FORB: Paducah by 3,
WHALE: Paducah by 17 and
ZIG: Cape Central by 3.

PERRYVILLE AT CHARLESTON -- Another tough one to pick, especially since quarterback Clark Quertermous' status isn't known. Charleston has a solid defense and plenty of speed while Perryville has struggled for the last two weeks. All agree the Jays will win, but not by much.

CHIEF: Charleston by 2,
FORB: Charleston by 1,
WHALE: Charleston by 8 and
ZIG: Charleston by 13.

POPLAR BLUFF AT JACKSON – The Mules really arrived last week at Perryville and they were preseason picks to win the conference title. Jackson has run up some big scores over some unproven competition. None the less, the three of panel goes with coach Paul Webber's wishbone attack in the biggest game of the night.

CHIEF: Jackson by 6,
FORB: Jackson by 7,
WHALE: Poplar Bluff by 5 and
ZIG: Jackson by 18.

PARAGOULD, ARKANSAS AT KENNETT -- It'll seem like a home away from home for the Golden Eagles from just across the border. The Arkansas school was forced to use the Kennett stadium for its home games while some repairs were being made at theirs. Kennett could use any edge available and they won't even have a total home field edge in this one. Look for the Indians to lose again.

CHIEF: Paragould by 9,
FORB: Paragould by 13,
WHALE: Paragould by 10 and
ZIG: Kennett by 6.

EAST PRAIRIE AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- A good one to watch if you like upsets. Nobody had the guts to go with the improving Eagles against Caruthersville, but all feel the game will be close. Caruthersville has yet to beat a good team and the East Prairie squad will give them a tussle.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 8,
FORB: Caruthersville by 12,
WHALE: Caruthersville by 10 and
ZIG: Caruthersville by 5.

ILLMO-SCOTT CITY AT CHAFFEE – Another good place for our panelists to stub their toes. Scott City stumbled badly last week against Dexter and hasn't shown a bit of offense since their opener with hapless South Pemiscot. Chaffee certainly isn't the team it was a year ago and won't be able to move the ball on the Ram defense.

CHIEF: I-SC by 7,
FORB: I-SC by 9,
WHALE: I-SC by 10 and
ZIG: I-SC by 13.

HAYTI AT CORNING, ARKANSAS – The Arkansas school has quite a history for football success, although little is known about their team this year. Hayti, quite simply, is building for the future.

CHIEF: Corning by 25,
FORB: Corning by 31,
WHALE: Corning by 28 and
ZIG: Corning by 16.

MALDEN AT SOUTH PEMISCOT -- The Wave are improving, game by game, and should handle the Bulldogs easily. Jimmie Kilgore may score enough to beat South Pem by himself.

CHIEF: Malden by 30,
FORB: Malden by 36,
WHALE: Malden by 25 and
ZIG: Malden by 30.

PORTAGEVILLE AT DONIPHAN – The Bulldogs may have the area's best running attack and they certainly will score big in this one. Look for it to come down between Portageville and I-SC for the Southern title, when the going gets tough.

CHIEF: Portageville by 35,
FORB: Portageville by 33,
WHALE: Portageville by 30 and
ZIG: Portageville by 24.

SIKESTON AT DEXTER -- How do you call this one? The Bulldogs died a week ago at Charleston, losing to a team that should have been beaten. Sikeston, quite frankly,doesn't have enough talent to win without a total effort. It is doubtful if they can stop Guilliams, despite the absence of Espey, and if they don't it may be a long, long season. On the other hand, a convincing Bulldog victory could add some luster to their reputation -- a reputation that seemed to be established against Perryville, but torn down a week later by a Charleston team that outplayed Sikeston on both sides of the line. Because of the injured Dexter quarterback, the panel stays with Sikeston, but not by much.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 4,
FORB: Sikeston by 2,
WHALE: Sikeston by 4 and
ZIG: Sikeston by 1.

BOXING

Ali was showing every one of his 35 years at the end, but he also showed his tremendous courage when, after being sent across the ring by a smashing right in the final round, he came back with a flurry of head punches that almost put Shavers down.

Judges Eva Shain and Tony Castellano each had it nine rounds to six for Ali, while referee Johnny LoBianco saw it 9-5-1 for the champion.

The Associated Press had it 10-5 for Ali.

GOLF

NAPA, Calif. — Dale Douglass, whose last tournament title came in 1970, shot an opening-round 66 for the first-round lead in Napa's annual pro golf tour event and was pursued closely Larry Ziegler and Mac McLendon, with 67s. All three played on Silverado's South course, in the opening round of the $200,000 tournament.

WORKSOP, England — Peter Butler birdied three holes in a row before the gale-force winds reached full strength and, with a two-under-par 69, assumed a solid three-stroke lead in the second round of the $70,000 British Masters golf tournament.

Australian Graham Marsh, winner of the Heritage Classic in the U.S. earlier this year, was alone in second after a 72 and a 142 total.

Economic and social problems beset once-calm smaller towns

Part I — The Problems

EDITORS' NOTE: Crime, pollution and government red tape are no longer the preserve of big cities. They've reached the little places, the small towns. Here, in the first of a two-part series, is a look at some of the wrenching difficulties now facing many smaller American cities.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

But in more and more small cities and towns, it's the city halls themselves that are finding they are unequipped to fight increasingly complex economic and social problems that are threatening their once-tranquil way of life.

Officials of those small towns and medium-sized cities complain that the larger cities are getting all the attention — and money — while their struggles are going largely unnoticed.

In recent months:

—Robert Marko, a citizen of Ambia, Ind., population 259, blanketed Washington with letters pleading that his town is being forced by the federal government to undertake a sewage treatment system that its mostly poor and elderly citizens can't possibly afford.

Four small towns, led by Worcester, Vt., sued the federal Economic Development Administration because they claimed they were being excluded from aid under the $4 billion public works job program. The four towns won a $535,000 settlement in federal court.

—Jerald Peters, part-time mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says he faces the prospect of managing a town with unemployment problems as serious as the worst of American slums. The city's immediate job crisis, he says, is largely due to the Carter administration's decision to close down nearby Kincheloe Air Force Base, the area's most important employer, in September.

"We expect a 40 per cent unemployment rate after the closing. The prospects have been very, very bad," says Peters, whose only hope is to persuade the Michigan state government to make use of part of the vacated Air Force facility.

For 20 years, census figures have shown a mass migration from big cities to smaller towns. City residents have hoped to find the country picket fences, the homey smiles and the friendly hellos — or at least an escape from crime, high taxes, dirt and other urban hassles.

But, economic or social changes that larger cities usually can absorb or adjust to have often proved cataclysmic to smaller towns: a factory shutting down, a new shopping mall opening nearby, or a federal grant lost because the city manager didn't know about it.

Some small cities are growing too fast and don't have the know-how to plan for it. Others are shrinking, losing population and jobs, and gaining older and poorer people requiring higher levels of government spending to sustain them. Still others have mayors and managers that lose federal and state aid because they don't have the expertise to comply with complex and often expensive grant regulations.

In the past year, the National League of Cities surveyed smaller cities to find out their most serious problems. The responses, in order, were: inability to meet requirements of federal applications and programs; budget problems; water storage and treatment; growth and land use planning; housing; law enforcement; stagnant tax base; lack of communication between city and citizens; sewage treatment, and state laws that infringe on city interests.

With a declining population, a decaying downtown area and a property tax rate that has tripled since 1970, "We're going to have some financial failures before this is all over and Lynn is definitely a prime candidate," says one Massachusetts state official who asked not to be identified.

A thriving medium-sized industrial town before World War II, Lynn was the nation's shoemaker, with 103 factories. It now has two factories and about 100 empty loft buildings scarring its downtown. The rest of those factories were forced out of business by foreign competition.

"Small towns that were just potato fields are turning into central cities. The range of responsibilities for officials of these cities is much greater than it was," says Dr. George Sternlieb of Rutgers University, an expert in the problems of small cities.

Sternlieb says the smaller cities located in big metropolitan areas generally are the worst off.

"The age of the shopping center is killing those towns. There has been a decline in their economic function. On the other hand, a small city in the prairie maintains its market role as a retail center," he says.

Plainfield, N.J., illustrates his point. Tepper's, a 100-year old local department store, went out of business a few months ago. In general, the city's downtown has had trouble luring shoppers for years. Most people prefer to shop on a nearby highway packed with convenience stores and shopping plazas.

On the other hand, many Midwestern prairie towns are suffering the urban ill known as redlining, an affliction normally associated with big-city slums. Redlining is when banks and other lenders refuse to invest money in an area they think is declining, thereby hastening the decline.

"Disinvestment is not solely an urban phenomenon. Rural America is subject to the same process with probably the same effects," says a 1976 study of housing and business investment patterns in Nebraska by the University of Nebraska's Center for Applied Urban Research.

The study found that "communities throughout Nebraska with populations under 1,000 and without a savings and loan association close by have the most difficulty." Home mortgage seekers in smaller towns are often required to pay higher interest rates, pay the loans back sooner and make larger down-payments, or aren't given loans at all.

Even communties like Naples, Maine, are not immune from problems like overcrowded schools. Nancy Bushell, one of three selectmen on the local council in this town of 1,800 says an influx of poorer people moved into new homes built with federally backed mortgages in the early 1970s.

As a result the tiny elementary and junior high school "is bulging," she says, and classes have had to be held in churches, armories and hallways. More than $500,000 of the city's $650,000 budget is taken up by schools.

In desperation, the community which lies on Sebago Lake north of Portland placed a moratorium on all new housing construction two years ago. The new housing ban was lifted this year but Naples, like other Maine towns, remains nervous over the consequences of unwanted rapid growth.

They are worried, says Maine Municipal Association executive director John L. Salisbury, over "those who arrive who want, or think they want, the amenities of a rural life. But when they come, it means they need all the expensive services: sewers, schools, sidewalks, the works."

Longer-term economic forces are at work in other small cities like Ashland, Wis. In the early 1950s, the town located on the shore of Lake Superior had more than 20,000 people and prospered with the Great Lakes shipping, mining and timber industries. With most of that regional business depressed, Ashland's population is down to less than 10,000. It has a chronically high unemployment rate and is trying desperately to lure summer tourists to its scenic location.

The average Ashland resident makes only $7,000 a year but must pay high local taxes because, although the population is low, it is a sprawling community and municipal services are expensive.

"This has been a neglected community for years," says 30-year-old mayor Bruce A. Hendrickson. "The problems we are dealing with are reflective of those of small cities around the country."

Onie Wheeler to appear here

Onie Wheeler's coming home. Wheeler, who began his country music career in the Bootheel in the 1940s will be the featured entertainer at Nashville North in Sikeston Saturday night, one block south of Gaslite Square on Rogers Street. Wheeler performed on the Grand Ole Opry for years and has made a name for himself as a solo performer and songwriter. Lisa Lee and Mary Nichols will also share the stage Saturday night with Wheeler. Wheeler, who grew up in the Crowder-Sikeston area, now lives in the Nashville area, but still has relatives in this area. He will do two shows, one at 7 p.m. and another at 9:30 p.m. Wheeler, center, discusses plans for his Saturday night show with Tony Pippen, left, Daily Standard managing editor, and Archie Corlew, Wheeler's manager. Corlew is Lisa Lee's father and will do a comedy act as "Archie B-Ball". (Daily Standard photo)

Carter profile low as Lance departs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three small incidents added up this week to a large suggestion that President Carter, at least for now, is done with publicly embracing Bert Lance.

On Monday, when the resigned director of the Office of Management and Budget returned to Washington for a quick round of farewells, there were these companion developments:

—The White House revealed, but only in response to questions, that Lance had left the federal payroll two days earlier. A spokesman said Carter had written his friend a personal letter that would not be made public.

—A handful of reporters were invited to Lance's old office at 3:30 p.m. that day to attend a farewell reception he gave for friends, acquaintances and erstwhile employes. However, uniformed police of the Executive Protective Service, which guards the White House complex, barred the invited reporters from entering, saying they had not been cleared through proper security channels.

—Later, a Lance emissary passed word to news organizations that the presidential presence at the Lance party had been recorded by White House staff photographers, who might be prepared to release photos for publication. But calls to the White House produced word that the photos had been taken "for historical purposes only" and would not be made public.

But perhaps all this was nothing more than coincidence.

As for Carter's letter last Saturday in which the President privately accepted Lance's resignation, effective immediately, there was cause to wonder Monday what had happened to it. Robert Dietsch, the OMB's top spokesman, said he asked Lance about it and was told the letter had not been received.

Inasmuch as the Carter letter had to travel only about the length of a football field, from the Oval Office to the OMB director's office next door, there was speculation that the President had disdained the inter-office mail system in favor of the Postal Service.

Carter's emotional trauma at presiding over the departure of his friend was evident to anyone who watched the televised news conference at which the Lance resignation was announced.

Unnoticed, perhaps, was Carter's impatience at ending the news conference ordeal, which produced nothing but questions about Lance. After the session had been in progress about 35 minutes, the President looked at his wristwatch and announced, "Thank you very much." Then he strode from the room, abandoning his custom of engaging in departing small talk with reporters in the front rows.

Of course, Carter also abandoned the tradition of waiting for the senior wire service reporter to end the conference by shouting, "Thank you, Mr. President."

The last time a President did not wait for a press corps "thank you" was when Richard M. Nixon, barraged with questions about Watergate, cut short a news conference in 1973.

Article by local pastor in The New Age

"Pastor, Is Reincarnation a Reality?", an article by the Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist Church, is included in the October issue of The New Age Magazine.

The New Age is the official publication of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, Southern Jurisdiction, United States of America, Washington, D. C., for which Dr. Fulbright has written articles several times previously.

The article on reincarnation is based on a sermon ofthe same title Dr. Fulbright preached to the local congregation on Nov. 21, 1976, and parallels a Pastor Speaks column he wrote in a Sunday edition of The Daily Standard early this year.

What's the law?

The case of the thwarted bargain hunter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Rosie operated a ladies' shop that was so exclusive it rarely even had customers in it. Suffering from a severe case of no business, Rosie decided to jazz up things with a little promotion. She advertised that she would sell a mink stole for a mere $25 to the first customer who entered her shop on a specified day.

When the designated day arrived -- so did Harold. First in the shop, he plunked down $25 on a counter and demanded the mink.

"O.K., lady", he said, "let me have it."

And Rosie did -- with both barrels.

"You've got some nerve coming in here," she told him. "This is a shop for women where I sell feminine things to females. If I wanted to trade with men, I'd sell cigars. Since the advertisement was obviously intended only for ladies," she concluded, "take your 25 bucks and get going."

Harold, however, considered the stole a steal for $25 and took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Harold to take advantage of Rosie's advertised sale?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an advertisement is clear, definite and explicit in all details, as in this case, leaving nothing open for further negotiations, it constitutes a binding offer. When accepted, concluded the judge, it cannot be changed, unmentioned house rules notwithstanding.

Submit a crazy, looney or odd statute or local law to Jack Strauss, 205 E 42nd St., N.Y., N.Y. 10017 and receive $5 if used. More than one submission welcome.

Fictitious essay becomes a reality

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Suzie Mages wrote a fictitious essay for class last week about a girl who gets kidnaped and killed. Now Suzie is missing.

The 4-foot-6, 65-pound girl was last seen Sunday at a fast-food restaurant, talking to a man described as having long hair.

State and local police searched the woods and streams near this Dallas suburb Tuesday for signs of the girl. The search was called off until daybreak today.

Del Mages says he doesn't think his daughter's essay had anything to do with the disappearance.

Welfare change requires aid recipients to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee agreed today to require that the federal minimum wage be paid under state programs designed to force welfare recipients to earn their benefits.

In approving the "workfare" provision Thursday on an 8-3 vote, the committee had agreed to allow either the local prevailing wage or the state minimum wage, whichever is higher.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, DLa., chairman of the panel, proposed today that the federal minimum wage be paid.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, RNeb., objected, contending that state officials who operate the welfare job programs are not inhuman.

"Well, I don't like to be called inhuman myself," Long replied, and the committee approved his proposed change.

The committee approved the workfare or "work-off" project as part of a package of changes in the welfare laws.

Under that proposal, state or local welfare officials would be allowed to require adults receiving aid under the huge Aid to Families with Dependent Children program to pay for their benefits by working at a variety of jobs. These could range from cleaning up parks and public facilities to helping in public child-care centers.

All such jobs would have to meet health and safety standards, the provision says, and would have to serve a useful purpose.

Localities could not use welfare recipients in jobs that would displace other workers doing jobs at normal wages, according to the welfare provision.

The AFDC program provides money to support mothers and, in some cases, unemployed fathers, of dependent children. Backers of the "work off" proposal estimate there could be as many as two million recipient adults who could be put to work by the provision if every state were to adopt it.

Backers of the proposal say the idea of the plan is to get welfare recipients into the habit of working.

But the provision was sharply criticized by welfare organizations and is opposed by the Carter administration, which blocked an effort to tie the package to a measure aimed at bailing out the financially troubled Social Security system.

Leonard Lesser of the Center for Community Change said welfare recipients shouldn't be forced to take such jobs.

"Just because they happen to be poor, they shouldn't be treated like second-class citizens. They should be given jobs at the same wage as anyone else," he said.

The administration opposes the provision partly because of fears the jobs offered to AFDC recipients would be of little lasting value and because the plan contains no provisions for meaningful job training.

OUR 68TH YEAR | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1977 | NUMBER 183

Investment from bill to be discussed here

State Treasurer James I. Spainhower is to be in Sikeston, Tuesday, to promote approval of a bill authorizing the treasurer to establish an investment pool for funds deposited by local governmental units.

Spainhower is to be at the Holiday Inn, at 2:30 p.m., to discuss this and other topics with area reporters.

The proposed amendment, which is known as Senate Joint Resolution 19, will be presented on the statewide ballot in the November, 1978, general election. Overwhelming approval was given the measure earlier this year after it was introduced in the State Legislature.

Provisions of the proposed amendment would authorize the Office of State Treasurer to create an investment pool for funds deposited by local governmental units. Such units would include city and county governments, road, water, sewer, hospital, school and fire protection districts.

Senate Joint Resolution 19 was introduced in the State Legislature at the request of Spainhower, who had studied the success of local investment pools authorized in other states.

Spainhower says, "Generally, local governmental units have only small amounts of surplus revenue available for investment. as a result, these small funds often are not used to produce additional revenues because they will not earn significant interest.

"The establishment of an investment pool for voluntary participation would provide a means of combining small funds for a larger revenue- producing deposit. In addition, local governmental units would have access to investment and financial counseling services provided by the Office of State Treasurer.

"Revenues earned by the pool would be paid back to a contributing governmental unit on a prorated scale based on the amount of the individual investment. The concept of such a pool has been tried successfully in Oregon and Minnesota. It has proven to be an additional source of revenue that would work well in Missouri and lighten the load of taxpayers in financing public services."

Suicide attempt fails this morning at K's

A public safety officer and another man helped prevent a suicide this morning when a 26-year-old ex-employe of K's Massage Parlor cut her wrist with a razor blade at the parlor, 223 W. Trotter St.

Public safety officers said Gala Parden, who has been living in the parlor since it closed, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment after she cut her wrist with a razor blade about 1 a.m.

When he arrived, Officer Steve Rogers found Mrs. Parden being held still by a man identified as Tom Tompkins. Mrs. Parden was bleeding from a cut about one and a half inches long.

Rogers wrapped the woman's wrist in a towel and had her put pressure on the cut until the ambulance arrived.

Tompkins told Rogers the woman had been drinking and was upset over losing her job at the parlor. The parlor closed about Sept. 1.

Rogers said Mrs. Parden was living in the office along with her five children, her sister, and four other children.

The officers said the children were all sleeping in one room on a pallet on the floor. He said the office was dirty, unorderly and smelled.

CBs, tools reported stolen

Three thefts from trucks were reported today by the Public Safety Department.

All three thefts were discovered early Thursday morning.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is giving President Carter approval to produce the neutron bomb, a new atomic weapon that opponents fear will greatly increase the risk of allout nuclear war.

The House of Representatives on Thursday approved an authorization bill to enable the President to spend money for the neutron bomb if he chooses to do so. The Senate previously approved a similar bill.

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

Carter has not announced whether he intends to approve production of the controversial weapon, but he did ask for the authorization that both houses have now granted.

The key House vote came on an amendment by Rep. Ted Weiss, D+N.Y. The amendment would have blocked Energy Research and Development Administration money from being used for the neutron bomb. But the amendment was defeated 297 to 109.

Weiss and his supporters said the neutron bomb would "lower the threshold" to nuclear war. They said military leaders might feel less inhibited about using the neutron bomb since it has less destructive power than large-scale nuclear weapons. That could make it easier to introduce nuclear weapons into an altercation that could touch off a nuclear holocaust, opponents said.

"I am frightened to death of this weapon," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D+Calif. "Once you start down the road to a nuclear war, there is no turning back. Once we make nuclear war thinkable, we make it possible, and once we make it possible we make it inevitable."

But supporters of the weapon said the neutron bomb is preferable to conventional nuclear weapons since it is less destructive to property.

Doctors talk of cancer 'cure'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cancer specialists say major progress in treating forms of leukemia with a combination of drugs has "solidified" the concept that other forms of cancer can be cured with chemicals.

The term "cure" was used repeatedly by researchers on Thursday at a National Conference on the Lymphomas and the Leukemias as they discussed results in both childhood and adult leukemias (blood cancer), and Hodgkin's Disease, a cancer of the lymph system.

Most of the credit is given to using combinations of drugs, a technique begun about 10 years ago.

Results since then "have solidified the concept we can cure cancers with chemicals," said Dr. Vincent J. De Vita, Jr. director of the Division of Cancer Treatment of the National Cancer Institute. The Institute and American Cancer Society are sponsoring the conference.

"Now we have the tools" to apply similar techniques to more common cancers, such as the breast and colon, Dr. De Vita said.

He said it is too early to tell if drugs plus surgery will have the same beneficial impact on breast cancers.

"Believers in drugs have used the word cured. We are using it more often now. Some people are living as long as those who had no cancer," Dr. De Vita said.

When former leukemia patients live long enough to have their own families and normal lives, "it is splitting hairs not to call them cured," said Dr. David J. Galton of the Royal Postgraduate Medical School, London, England. "We are possibly beginning to see the same upswing in other forms of cancer."

Thirty years ago, the average survival rate for children with acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL) was only two months. Now, for 50 per cent it is five years, with many living and well far longer, said Dr. Emil Frei III of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Boston.

Dr. Joseph V. Simone of Stanford University and Dr. Donald Pinkel of Milwaukee Children's Hospital told of a group of more than 100 children with ALL who are in remissions, apparently well, three to 10 years after drug treatment was stopped. "I think they are fairly safe now," Dr. Simone said.

Filibuster threatens debt bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate deadlock over natural gas prices is threatening to block action on a crucial debt ceiling measure, leaving the government without the authority to borrow money and pay its bills.

Leaders of a filibuster aimed at stopping efforts to lift federal price controls on natural gas switched tactics Thursday and took aim at the debt ceiling bill in an effort to force a Senate vote on a gas-pricing compromise.

The new development came shortly before the Senate adjourned late Thursday night after efforts to reach agreement on the natural gas legislation fell through.

One of the leaders of the filibuster, Sen. James Abourezk, D+S.D., objected when Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd asked to temporarily set aside the energy bill for a vote on the debt ceiling legislation.

If the debt ceiling bill is not passed by Saturday morning, the beginning of the new fiscal year, the government will lose its authority to borrow money to pay its bills.

But terms under which the Senate is debating the gas bill prohibit interruptions for action on any other legislation without unanimous consent.

Abourezk acknowledged that in refusing to approve a temporary delay in debate his action had the effect of holding the debt ceiling bill hostage to the natural gas legislation.

"We won't let it come up. It's a form of leverage," Abourezk said.

And he said he plans to continue to block a vote on the debt ceiling unless the Senate dumps the proposal to free natural gas prices from federal control in favor of a compromise proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D+Wash. The compromise has the support of the Democratic leadership.

Jackson's proposal would allow gas prices to rise more than President Carter wants but it would not remove price controls as Republicans and oilstate Democrats advocate.

Sen. Howard H. Metzenbaum, D+Ohio, who had joined Abourezk in waging the filibuster against the gas deregulation effort, supported Abourezk's move to hold the debt ceiling bill hostage.

The House voted on Wednesday to set a debt ceiling of $773 billion through next September and the Senate Finance Committee approved the figure of $754 billion through next April 30.

Efforts to reach agreement on a natural gas compromise collapsed Thursday in a parliamentary tangle, leaving the Senate almost as deeply divided over this portion of the President's energy program as when debate began nearly two weeks ago.

Despite Carter's exhortation Thursday in a nationally televised news conference that inaction invites crisis, the Senate is stymied by the two competing proposals. Support appears to be almost evenly divided between the two plans and those on both sides were chasing after the votes of wavering senators.

Byrd spent the day shuttling between opposing camps in an unsuccessful quest for an agreement, then adjourned the Senate, saying he sees no chance of resolving the controversy before Saturday at the earliest.

A MOVING EXPERIMENT

Considering the sad state of so many American cities, it's not surprising that the federal government is looking for a clean, simple way to move people around congested downtown areas.

Four cities — Cleveland, Los Angeles, Houston and St. Paul, have been chosen to experiment with new people-mover systems, and the experiments will be well worth the money invested if they can reduce traffic and air pollution in the heart of town.

People movers, for those who missed those old Flash Gordon serials on Saturday afternoons, are light, quiet, driverless vehicles that glide from station to staion on their own (often elevated) guideways. They don't interfere with pedestrians and they don't compete with cars and buses.

Cleveland, for example, hopes to use a two-mile people-mover system as a way of connecting rapid transit stations and parking lots with other downtown points.

There is plenty of hard-nosed skepticism — in Cleveland and elsewhere — about the people-mover idea. And perhaps that's a healthy thing. A people mover now operating at West Virginia University in Morgantown has been, in many ways, an expensive disappointment.

But the people-mover concept has been carried out successfully at a number of large airports, including Tampa, Miami, Seattle and Dallas. And there is reason to believe it can be adapted to the needs of cities as well.

Two years ago the U.S. Department of Transportation threatened to cut off mass transit funds for major cities unless they did something about reducing downtown traffic congestion.

For some cities, the people mover may not be an attractive or even a practical solution. For others, it could be a useful step in the right direction.

LOOK, YOU MAY LIKE IT

Personally, we like the looks of our Missouri State Highways since the highway department adopted the policy of mowing only a few feet back from the pavement and allowing the banks and the rest of the right-of-way to stay in a natural state.

Instead of being manicured from fence to fence those unmowed plots now show dozens of varieties and millions of wild blossoms almost everywhere you look in Monroe County.

Maybe it does appear a little more ragged than it did when the department mowed it all, but our guess is the travelers from other areas will appreciate the beauty that they can now see along our highways, and by doing so, better appreciate Missouri.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — It's now 10 years since Teamsters' general president Frank Fitzsimmons began to sit comfortably in the big seat in Jimmy Hoffa's office in their marble palace down the street. Today, he and his colleagues are busier than centipedes stuck in a flypaper factory. The profundity of this simile I soon will evidence.

Never has one union been such a concentrated target of so many investigations and revolts. But there's more here than the Pilgrim's Progress of the oft irascible Fitzsimmons who believes that the media is responsible for all his and his Brotherhood's troubles.

The probes, national, state and local, and the rebellions against the union hierarchy, inside and out, may splinter the massive organization and thus grind much of this nation's industrialism and warehousing to a turtle's pace in a year or so more.

Federal authorities report there are at least "40 or 50" ongoing investigations into the Brotherhood and many of its funds and activities "of all sorts" -- by the Securities and Exchange Commission, local and county prosecutors, various sections of the Labor Department, several Justice Department anti-crime strike forces, a special Criminal Division unit, "many" IRS teams, the FBI, U.S. attorneys and State prosecutors (especially in New York and New Jersey). Not to mention a number of investigative reporters now typewriter- deep in behalf of the union's internal opposition.

As one piquant source said the other day, "I will not (repeat not) talk to you in gernalities, I will talk at random."

Somehow, for example, a 35-year-old Allen Glick got himself to be the Teamster's Chicago-based pension fund's biggest borrower. He got $150 million. Now, you just don't get that kind of money from the fund without clout. And little Glick of San Diego didn't start with much muscle. Still with Teamsters pension money he got to be one of Las Vegas' biggest gambling casino- hotel tycoons. You just don't get "in" Las Vegas. The way has to be greased by someone who can rule on territories, cuts, skims, etc.

Authorities aren't yet disclosing any evidence of Glick's shady connections on that strip where it takes a wave of the hand by someone like "Fat" Tony Salerno of the Genovese crime family to grant someof the action. So the SEC wants to know all about Glick's interlocked corporations, their "paper" and what the Teamsters' big pension fund actually got for its $150 million loans. This fund must live by SEC rules, too.

And, say Labor Department investigators, they too want to know all about Glick's luck. Which leads us to a fascinating remark by Labor Secretary Marshall which appears to have gone unnoticed in print or on the tube.

"At this time," said Marshall some weeks ago, "our investigative activity is shifting from a review of fund (Teamsters') records and documents to a search for evidence in the possession of others such as individuals associated with the fund. Much of what we discovered in the asset management phase of our investigation will be relevant to this second phase. In addition we have periodically turned over to the Justice Department evidence that may warrant prosecution under federal criminal statutes.

"We continue to do this as we proceed with the second phase of our investigation."

All this, and more, is churning behind the scenes. So, I'll pass swiftly over Glick and the IRS charge that he owes some $9.5 million in back taxes and fraud penalties. And just as quickly, over reports of internal feuds among the Brotherhood's national leaders as well as the coming battle between Eastern Teamster titans over the newly legitimatized casinos and hotel jurisdiction in burgeoning Atlantic City -- Las Vegas East.

It's all whirlpooling just below the surface at the very moment when lawyers for Prod, the rebel teamsters organization which is a modernized counterpart of Miners for emocracy, and attorneys for Fitzsimmons are negotiating what charges the rebels will be permitted to bring against Fitz before the Brotherhoods' International Executive Board. If there's no agreement on this Kafka - like trial of Fitzsimmons before his own peers, comrades and kingmakers, Prod plans to take it all into federal court.

Followed in by the media, of course. Charges do not (repeat not) a guilty one make -- but they do make headlines.

Meanwhile, the old truck fleet owners front which had so many intimate ties with Teamsters officials has split. Some of the biggest and most powerful corporations in the Trucking Employers, Inc. (TEI) have broken away from the coordinated bargaining group and are creating Carrier Management, Inc.

The corporate dissidents say they've been surrendering too much to the union's over-the-road haulers in the Master Freight agreements. And that they're weary of paying $25,000 a year per driver "for in-city work."

What's crucial here is that there will be splintered regional bargaining when the natural contract expires in March 1979. Previous national bargaining agreements originally put together by Jimmy Hoffa long before he went astral, cover some 400,000 drivers in the inner gut of American commerce.

It's all coming together sooner than we think. Pressures from the inside and warfare on the outside could cripple the massive union -- and the nation -- in the next 18 months. Just watch the wheels spin.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Defense Secretary Harold Brown stated recently that the Soviets are building four new types of intercontinental ballistic missiles, but he doesn't know "why the Soviets are pushing so hard to improve their strategic nuclear capabilities."

At a congressional hearing in February, 1969, Defense Secretary Malvin Laird was asked why the Soviets were engaged in a massive buildup of strategic weapons, especially their huge 25-megaton SS-9 super-missle.

He responded with a valid and commonsense explanation: "The Soviets are going for a first- strike capability. There is no question about that."

Our nation's top policymakers, who were then President Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, did not agree with Laird's assessment of Soviet intentions. No one has ever revealed what sort of reprimand was administered behind closed doors but, shortly thereafter, Laird changed his tune. The next time he was asked the same question, he meekly replied that it was not his function to interpret Soviet intentions.

If it is not the function of the secretary of defense to interpret the meaning of a huge buildup by the Soviets of nuclear weapons that are capable of incinerating scores of millions of Americans, then whose is it?

Nixon and Kissinger admitted that the answer was beyond them.

In the 1972 State of the World Report, issued under Nixon's name but admittedly written by Kissinger, they "made it perfectly clear" with an unambiguous assertion: "We cannot know the intentions of Soviet leadership."

The evidence is overwhelming that Laird was correct in his original explanation of why the Soviets are building huge strategic weapons. The megatonnage of their missile force is now estimated as at least ten times greater than ours. The Soviet SS-9, for example, has 25 times the megatonnage of our Minuteman missile.

But assuming that Brown is truthful when he says he doesn't know why the Soviets are building four new ICBMs, then the only rational U.S. course of action is to base our defense on Soviet capabilities rather than on their intentions.

That means building a defense posture superior to Soviet weapons, rather than speculating as to how they intend to use them.

The four new ICBMs the Soviets are building all have a greater throw-weight than those they are replacing. Three have MIRV warheads.

Yet the U.S. response has been to ignore Soviet capabilities as well as intentions. In the last several months, Brown has halted production of our Minuteman III ICBM and terminated a related program to improve the accuracy of our Minuteman II. President Carter announced his surprise decision to halt production of the B-1 bomber. Our Navy today has fewer ships than at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, and there are no plans for any significant additions.

If Brown doesn't understand Soviet intentions, and has chosen to ignore Soviet capabilities, then our only recourse is to invite the American people to join the decision- making process.

One of the outstanding military writers in the country, Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Black, U.S. Army (Ret.), urged open public discussion in a recent article that won second prize in the annual Institute of Naval Proceedings Essay Contest. He suggests a review of our national strategy by the National security Council in private sessions to be conducted concurrently with a congressional review in open hearings.

The synthesis could be a national policy that would meet our national security requirements of the coming decade, and also have the support of the American people.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

More On a Tin-Medal Tyrant

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unmilitary bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and medals.

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father, Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

He uses the political machinery to keep his people in line. No one, for example, is permitted to hold a government job unless he is a member of Somoza's political party, the Nationalist Liberal Party.

As evidence of their political allegiance, party members carry a membership card widely known as 'La Rosadita," or the little pink card. The more irreverent call it "La Magnifica," after the prayer card which Catholics carry as protection from unknown dangers.

La Rosadita is the key to government employment. Ministers and managers, truck drivers and garbage collectors alike must produce their little pink card before they are put on the government payroll.

Under the Somoza system, the obligations of a public servant are unique. They are expected in addition to their governmental duties to attend Somoza's parades and speeches and to hail their chief with compulsory cheers. In the past, they were actually required to report to their places of employment and punch time clocks before a parade. Then they were bused or trucked like cattle to the appointed location.

Government employees must also kick back part of their pay to finance the party. Each payday, five percent of their gross salary is automatically deducted from their paychecks for party dues. The money is used to pay for rallies, parties and anything else Somoza chooses to charge to the party.

A decade ago, while Somoza's brother Luis was president, the government was reorganized into a system strikingly similar to the communist system the Somozas denounce. Hundreds of "cantons" were created at the local level, giving the Somozas a tighter grip on the populace down to the grassroots.

The canton leaders are expected to know everyone in their jurisdictions. Almost all government services – roads, schools, permits, licenses – are administered through the cantons. Thus it is impressed upon the peasants that if they expected to live a trouble-free life, they must jump when the government so orders.

So today, when Somoza needs a large crowd to cheer him, he merely passes the word and the local leader rounds up the required number of bodies. As an inducement, Somoza turns on the party money valve and a flow of cash trickles down to the cantons.

The canton leaders, of course, help themselves to the biggest share. But all the way down the line, the other organizers take their cuts. There is little left for the peasants who pour out of the buses. Usually, each peasant is presented with a little banner to wave and a glass of "guaro" – rotgut liquor produced by the government – to wash away his doubts and ease his burdens.

Some readers may ask why we would spend five months investigating an obscure dictator of no consequence beyond his own borders. In recent years, the American people have found themselves uncomfortably allied with a host of two-bit tyrants. They have been recruited into the U.S. bloc by the power brokers in Washington.

Anastasio Somoza is the epitome of these petty tyrants – a bemedaled, beer-bellied potentate who has developed an epoxylike bond with Washington. He toes the U.S. line at the United Nations. He allowed the CIA to use his country as the staging base for the Bay of Pigs invasion. He is the darling of the Pentagon.

As the price for Somoza's friendship, the United States has provided the economic and military support that has kept his family in power. This has brought about the Americanization of Anastasio Somoza. He even spurns the Spanish language, preferring instead the American slang he learned as a student at West Point. He has become a foreigner in his own land.

Somoza rules a country bedeviled by oppressive heat and humidity. The human birth rate is as high as the productivity is low. Most Nicaraguans are born into poverty; they toil for some of the lowest wages in the Western hemisphere. The average hourly pay is barely 30 cents.

Yet their ruler is estranged from them; more accurately, he has insulated himself from their problems. He has a low opinion of his people and, according to one source, "doesn't believe the country can be developed through the Nicaraguan people." It is a disdain, Nicaraguans tell us, that the people reciprocate.

The decision to support Somoza and other dictators like him is a national disgrace and an abrogation of America's historic commitment to champion democracy throughout the world.

Footnote: Our associate Joe Spear has sought the comments of the Nicaraguan embassy. We have waited several days. We will be happy to publish the comments when they are received.

Todays News In Brief

Bodies of GIs to leave Hanoi

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — In the glare and sweltering heat of Vietnam's afternoon sun American soldiers and sailors today lifted the remains of 21 American servicemen and a civilian into the belly of a military cargo plane that would take them home for the last time.

The servicemen had died during the Vietnam war that ended in April 1975 and their remains were being turned over to the United States after long negotiation by the Vietnamese Communists.

After the brief ceremony, Vu Hoang of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said: "We have cooperated closely on these humanitarian matters. We need to settle the past perfectly, so we can have good and sound basis for establishing normal relations between the two countries."

The joint mission of the U.S. Defense and State departments was the fifth to Hanoi to accept the remains of Americans killed in the Indochina war.

Frank Sieverts, coordinator for prisoner-of-war and missing-in-action affairs for the State Department, said the names will be released only when the army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii confirms the identities.

French jetliner hijacked

PARIS (AP) — A hijacker shot and wounded a stewardess and commandeered a French jetliner with 107 persons aboard today, forcing it to return to Paris' Orly airport, where he demanded to broadcast a message to France, authorities said.

The gunman — described as about 45 years old, big, blond and blue-eyed — quickly freed the wounded stewardess and six passengers from the Air Inter Caravelle, which had been bound for Lyon on a domestic flight. Officials said the stewardess was not badly hurt.

The pilot radioed the control tower that the hijacker, said to be armed with a grenade and pistol, wanted to broadcast a message over Radio Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte Carlo and threatened to execute a passenger if the request was not granted.

Newsmen from the two private stations, which direct their broadcasts principally at France, were standing by to make the recording.

But it was reported that local officials negotiating with the hijacker insisted on first knowing the contents of the 12-minute message and the hijacker replied that everything he had to say was in the message, including the fate of the passengers and the destination he hoped to reach.

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Hijackers holding a Japan Air Lines DC8 jet released four more hostages today as Japanese officials rounded up prisoners in Japan and $6 million to meet the terrorists' ransom demands.

Bangladesh Foreign Secretary Dobraki Hussain said negotiations were going well. But other officials said the five gunmen were growing irritable and short-tempered in the third day of the siege and were communicating less with the outside.

These officials also said the terrorists had not been told that one of their demands would not be fully met — three of the nine prisoners in Japanese jails whose freedom the hijackers demanded have refused the offer to leave.

Japanese officials said the ransom flight Saturday would arrive here more than seven hours after the hijackers' latest deadline and would carry no more than six of the prisoners.

The Bangladesh officials said it was not known whether the hijackers, said to be members of the ultraleftist Japanese Red Army, were willing to extend their deadline once again.

The latest hostage release brought to nine the number of passengers freed since the plane was seized Wednesday.

Foreclosures ordered halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has issued orders to the Farmers Home Administration to take all steps possible to halt real estate foreclosures on lowincome farm families for the remainder of this year.

The FHA is the Agriculture Department's main lending agency to help low-income people buy or enlarge farms. It also handles other programs, including loans and grants, to help other rural people buy or improve homes, start small businesses and carry out community development projects.

Although not officially announced, sources said Thursday that directives are expected to be sent soon to state and local offices of the nationwide agency. One said that Bergland "gave a direct order" to FHA to take all possible steps to head off farm loan foreclosures at least through the remainder of 1977.

An aide to Bergland confirmed that the order had been passed to the agency but said that FHA "will not necessarily issue a blanket" halt to all foreclosures. Flagrant cases still may involve foreclosures, he said.

According to the sources, Bergland is alarmed that the current low prices of many farm commodities and a precipitous drop in net farm income from the record levels of a few years ago could have a disastrous effect on many of the low-income families who are buying farms through FHA financing.

Vance pursues peace talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance holds talks today with Foreign Ministers Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union and Moshe Dayan of Israel in an effort to convene a new Mideast peace conference. Officials from the Soviet Union are being briefed regularly by high-level Carter administration officials on prospects for Arab+Israeli negotiations.

Diamond mystery broadens

CHICAGO (AP) — A broker is reported missing with up to $300,000 in gems from New York's diamond district, and his relatives say they fear he has been killed. Police in New York already are investigating the murder of another merchant from the famed diamond center and the disappearance of a fortune in diamonds. Abraham Shafizadeh has been missing since since July 27, the day before he left for Puerto Rico on business, his relatives said. They say police have suggested that the disappearance is linked to organized crime.

Scientists to sample iceberg

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — As scientists ponder the use of icebergs at a conference in Iowa next week, they will be watching their subject melt in their cocktail glasses. Wet-suited divers planned to slip into the icy waters of a lake at the foot of Alaska's Portage Glacier south of here today to commandeer a 2,500-pound ice slab from a floating glacial iceberg. The ice will be used at the First International Conference on Iceberg Utilization at Iowa State University Sunday through Thursday. Representatives of 18 nations are expected to attend.

Abortion compromise eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise that would expand the use of tax money for abortions while dropping a controversial "medical necessity" provision is under study in the House. The Senate compromise was offered to get the abortion issue through a House+Senate conference committee. The committee scheduled another meeting for Monday after failing to reach agreement in a three-hour session Thursday.

Only Senate need vote on treaty, Bell says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell argued today that the Carter administration need not submit the Panama Canal treaty to the House as well as the Senate before the Panamanian government can be given control of the Canal Zone.

Bell quoted U.S. Supreme Court opinions dating well into the last century and read from the original debates at the constitutional convention in 1787 to counter claims of treaty opponents that only the full Congress — including the House — can approve the cession of U.S. territory.

The pending treaty would cede the 10-mile-wide U.S. Canal Zone to the Republic of Panama and turn the canal itself over to Panamanian ownership and control in the year 2000.

The House will be asked to pass specific legislation implementing the treaty, including bills to organize a new Panama Canal Commission and to adjust the jurisdiction of U.S. courts and law enforcement during the 30-month transition period called for in the treaty.

Jorden said the United States cannot best achieve its goal of maintaining the canal open, efficient, safe and neutral by being "inflexible and bullheaded" and by adopting "simplistic formulas like 'it's ours and we're going to keep it.'"

"No waterway or road, no military base or business, can long remain open and efficient if it is surrounded by a sea of public hostility and resentment," the ambassador said.

Jorden said the issue of the Canal Zone unifies the Panamanian people like no other.

"You will find that whether they are rich or poor, city men or campesinos, university graduates or day laborers, they are as one in their dream of a Panama that is unified and sovereign, a country that is no longer divided in half by a foreign enclave," the ambassador said.

He said the main issue is not the canal but rather the Canal Zone.

"It is an area over which Panama — the country in which it is located — has absolutely no control of any kind," he said. "If a Panamanian is caught speeding or is involved in an accident, he gets a ticket from a foreign policeman. If the offense is serious enough, he is tried in a foreign court, under a foreign code of laws."

Desloge grocer pays major crime costs

Special to the Daily Standard
By Don Keough
Of the Columbia Daily Tribune

DESOLAGE —Wayne Long is a victim of crime against property. He stands today with the shattered dream of a 20-year effort. He is paying off a nearly $100,000 debt as the direct result of a firebombing and then a dynamite bombing of his new supermarket.

And as Waybne Long looks around, he sees little effective action being taken by law enforcement agencies to apprehend the person or persons who contracted with organized crime elements to put him out of business.

Long's story began in 1960. At that time, he purchased a small neighborhood supermarket in Desloge from his father.Thirteen years later, it was paid for; Long was ready to expand.

He leased a large building just off Highway 67 in Bonne Terre, about 60 miles south of St. Louis. Fourty years old at the time, Long began what he, his father, his wife, and five children had planned for more than a generation-operation of a major supermarket.

By June 13, Long's Bonne Terre operation was firebombed in the early morning hours. He closed his door for about five weeks to make repairs, eventually losing about 20,000 above what his insurance reimbursed.

Local and federal investigators turned up nothing. Long feared it would occur again.

But by November his business was back in full swing. On the 12th day of that month, again the early morning hours, police extimated that 150 sticks of dynamite were exploded against one of the outside walls of the supermarket, strategically placed opposite a steel safe on the inside Flying debris and steel destroyed the building and its contents.

The dynamite-bombing caught Long at a time when his inventory had been increased substantially for the holiday season. This time around, more than $70,000 of Long's losses were not covered by insurance.

Federal investigators moved in. The bombing obviously was the work of professionals. Long had not been threatened. He had no labor problems. No one had offered to buy. His records proved he was making a profit and his business was growing substantially. There was no indication whatever of any reason for insurance fraud, so that motive was ruled out early. The owner of the building also was cleared.

Federal sources say the motive eventually was narrowed to business competition.

Acting on information from an informant, federal investigators made their only arrests in the case some 18 months after the second bombing.

Ray Edward Warden and Gabriel Tyrone Weatherspoon were charged with bombing and conspiracy. The two also were accused of stealing 500 pounds of dynamite form the Georgia Marble Co. in Jefferson County.

Weatherspoon turned state's evidence. His charges were reduced to one count in exchange for testimony against Warden. The U.S. attorney's officeals agreed to prove Weatherspoon with a new identity when finally released from a federal penetentiary, where he's serving a five-year sentence, under protection.

Fred Buckles, an assistant U.S. attorney in St. Louis, recently told The Tribune there was and is no doubt in the minds of federal prosecutors that the Long bombing was a contract-that Warden and Weatherspoon were hired by unnamed parties.

Federal sources outside the U.S. attorney's office add that Weatherspoon was hired by Warden to assist in the dynamite theft and the bombing. Weatherspoon rode with Warden the night he collected payment. Weatherspoon federal sources say, had identified the house Warden entered, although Weatherspoon was not present when the money changed hands.

The key, then to the federal investigation was Warden. Interviewed recently by The Tribune at the state prison in Moberly, Warden confirmed that the bombing was a contract. He said he had no idea who Long was, "I had nothing against the guy," Warden said. "It was not a personal. It was business."

And Warden hastened to add that he had nothing to do with the initial firebombing of Long's supermarket, the crime on which no arrests have been made.

But now, as in the past, Warden is not saying who paid for the dynamite-bomboing.

Federal prosecutors concede they considered granting Warden immunity and forcing him to identify who contracted for thebombing. But clearly, they wanted Warden in jail for the crime.

"At the time, we also had four or five cards in our hand that could have led to further prosecution," Buckles said. But by the time the hand had been played out, Warden had been sentenced and the first chance for an immunity proceeding had passed the federal prosecutors by. Then each play of the "four or five" cards redulted in a bust.

Today, federal prosecutors say that the case is open still and that efforts continue to apprehend the person or persons who contracted for the Long bombing. But Buckles also concedes that no one from his office has talked with Warden since he was sent to state prison.

There were other federal miscalculations. The hoped for a maximum sentence to be levied against Warden after he entered pleas of guilty. They felt a long prison sentence would make Warden willing to talk at a later time in return for recommendations for an early parole.

But Warden received sentences totaling 15 years. During federal prodeedings, Warden also pleaded guilty to a state charge for an armed robbery of a Bonne Terre jewelry store. On that charge, he received a state sentence of 10 years. Federal Judge John Reagan recommended that the time Warden spent in state prisons would also count against his federal time.

Warden will be eligible this year for state parole.

Wayne Long's dream of success has dissolved into a small, street-corner grocery store in Desloge and thousands of dollars in debts. In 1974, Long's large Bonne Terre supermarket was bombed, leaving an embittered victim of crime in outstate Missouri.

The knowing silence of prison inmate Ray Edward Warden holds the only key to ending Wayne Long's nightmare. But federal investigators have made no attempts to question the hired bomber since he began serving time at the Moberly prison. (Photo by Alan Berner)

As a result of Reagan's sentencing, Warden conceivably could become eligible for federal parole at the same time. That's assuming he'll be handed over to federal authorities after release from state prison. State officials were surprised to learn-from the Tribune that Warden faced a federal prison sentence. No one had informed them. Buckles promised to correct that oversight.

Long feels there has been a remarkable lack of zeal in the federal prosecution. He believes the first round of action took place only after he had appealed to U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton. And now Long believes the case is being reviewed only because he had appealed to this newspaper for action.

Federal sources say the case was handled first as a personal project by the U.S. attorney for eastern Missouri Barry Short. It was handed over to Buckle after Short became involved heavily in the successful prosecution of former Missouri House Speaker Richar Rabbitt on extortion charges. But Buckles already had a caseload that probably could keep at least two men busy.

Other federal sources say outstate crimes against property take low priority to the U.S. attorney's efforts against organized crime in metropolitan St. Louis and against political corruption.

The Long bombing had received Short's personal attention only because of the case's extraordianry circumstances and because of the likely involvement of organized crime "middlemen."

"We like to show now and then that we are paying attention to outstate Missouri," said one federal source who asked not to be identified "for obvious reasons."

Bombing actually is a state, as well as a federal crime. But outstate law enforcement officials were happy to leave the matter to the federal government. Local enforcement agents lack the powerful prosecuting tool of immunity. And they don't command the investigative tools and manpower available to the federal government.

Today, Wayne Long is back in the Desloge neighborhood store where his family's grocery business began more than a generation ago. Only this time, he is making payment on a $100,000 debt. Because "someone out there" is still free and conceivably still able to hire another bomber, and because his assets are now fully mortgaged, Long is not able to obtain financial backing of a new store.

The insurance rates on even his old store rose after the bombing from $1,800 a year to $5,400. And he was only able to get that insurance coverage through the high-risk pool guaranteed by law.

Today, Wayne Long is not a happy man. He thinks something has gone wrong with the system.

Elks raise $2,000 for charities

Sikeston Elks Lodge 2319 raised about $2,000 during the American Legion Cotton Carnival that will be used for the lodge's charitable projects throughout year, it was announced today by Shae Kuehle, exalted ruler of the lodge.

Sikeston Elks donate or assist annually with Christmas baskets, Boys State, Babe Ruth baseball, Kennett orphanage, cerebral plasy and the idatetic bike-a-thon.

Kuehle expressed thanks to the people who patronized the Elks' corn-on-the-cob stand and to the American Legion for letting them participate in this year's Cotton Carnival.

The word vaccine came from a Latin word meaning "cow" because the first vaccine — for smallpox — was made from a substance from cows.

Oil shale in the United States may hold 40 gallons of petroleum to a ton of rock but no one yet knows how to extract it economically or without ruining thousands of square miles of the western U.S. by strip mining. The oil shale holds many times the known American oil reserves of 45.4 billion barrels.

The Rev. and Mrs. Loren Wooten

Wootens leaving First Assembly

The morning worship service Sunday will be the final one Pastor and Mrs. Loren Wooten will conduct for the First Assembly of God Church 306 S. Kinghshighway, prior to entering the evangelistic ministry.

The Rev. Mr. Wooten assumed the pastorate at First Assembly in May 1974. He previously had been the pastor from 1953 to 1959, and it was during that tenure that the present auditorium was built. The Wootens left here in 1959 to accept the pastorate of Berea Temple Assembly of God in St. Louis.

Prior to returning in 1974, the Rev. Mr. Wooten was serving as national evangelist field representative with his office in the assemblies of God national headquarters in Springfield. Along with this position he conducted revival crusades across the country, and the Wootens plan to enter this type ministry again.

After a planned crusade in Missouri they will go to Maryland, where they will stay until Christmas. Then they open in Bradenton, Fl., on Dec. 31.

After the Sunday morning worship service, the church plans a fellowship dinner as a time to say farewell to the couple.

After the fellowship dinner, their new home, a 31-foot travel trailer, will be dedicated just before the Wootens "pull" away

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 17. John the Baptist's Disciples

Jesus continued to teach and preach in the various cities. When John, who had been imprisoned, heard of his miraculous works and teachings, he sent two of his disciples to ask Jesus if he were truly the promised Messiah or if they should seek another.

"Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me." (Matthew 11:4-6)

"And, as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?...But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee." Preparing for change

BENTON — No matter what your age now you will someday most likely face retirement and its adjustments. All of us have heard a businessman say, "I can't wait till I'm retired so I can go fishing when I please." But, in reality, what happens? This man cannot find anyone to accompany him to a favorite fishing hole. Or maybe he wishes he was back at work, in a routine, and being productive. All of a sudden his wife doesn't appreciate his constant advice and help in her kitchen.

This situation goes on and on, often repeating itself in many cases. Any person needs to feel productive, worthwhile, and important. Yet retired people are sometimes cut off from our busy world.

The key is seemingly a "be prepared" attitued. Being prepared for adjustments that go along with retirement is not any guarnatee for perfection, but it will make life more enjoyable. Preparation in all aspects of life should begin several years before possible retirement. Consider your financial situation, where you'll live, how you'll spend your time, etc. Seek out information pertaining to all of these topics

Talk about your feelings and adjustments required within your home and family. Beginning retired life is truly a passage which could turn into a crisis.

Look around for examples. There are many elderly people who are active in their communities, serving in organizations, doing volunteer work, in general loving life. Retirement can eventually happen to all of us, but how we cope and adjust to it is and individual matter.

Book lists area historical sources

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Janie Wright librarian at Southeast Missouri State University, has recently compiled a 51-page bibliography entitled "Sources of Missouri History and Genealogy in Selected Libraries of Southeast Missouri, according to Geoffery Roth, Kent Library director.

This booklet, a selected union list of library materials, was designed by George Pendergrass, University library coordinator for media services, and was printed by the University printing services.

Preparation of this bibliography was an outgrowth of several informal meetings among representatives of college, public, and school libraries in southeast Missouri during the past year. These meetings were held for the purpose of considering several possible cooperative library ventures, Roth said.

Martha Maxwell, director of the Cape Girardea Public Library, contributed a prepared list of the library's holdings on Missouri history. By informal agreement this list was expanded to include the holdings of 16 southeast Missouri area libraries including five from Cape Girardeau: Kent, Cape Girardeau Public, St. Vincent's College, Notre Dame High, and Central High.

Other participating libraries included Bollinger County, Current River Regional, Dunklin County, Mississippi County, Jackson Public, New Madrid County, Ozark Regional,Poplar Bluff Senior High, Riverside Regional, Sikeston Public and Three Rivers Community College.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader proves times haven't changed much

Dear Ann: I wasn't too crazy about your correspondents who referred to themselves as "The Girls." May I share with you a delightful quote from George Bernard Shaw, written a generation ago? It proves that nothing has changed.

Shaw noticed that the most tyrannical females are strongly opposed to women's rights. He said this:

"No fascinating woman ever wants to emancipate her sex. Her object is to gether power into the hands of Man, because she knows that she can govern him. She is no more jealous of his nominal supremacy that he himself is jealous of the strength and speed of his horse. Women disguise their strength as womanly weakness, their audacity as womanly timidity, their unscrupulousness as womanly innocence, their impunities as womanly defenselessness; simple men are duped by them, and subtle ones disarmed and intimidated. It is only the proud, straightforward women who wish, not to govern, but to be free..."

G.B.S. sure used a lot of two-bit words, didn't he? -- Proud Woman

Dear Woman: He sure did -- and if he were around today, he'd have to wear a crash helmet and a bullet-proof vest.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have not been getting along worth a damn for two years. I tried counseling (Sam wouldn't go) and was told by my doctor, my minister and my therapist to finish this marriage before it finishes me.

We have two children, five and seven years of age. We also have a German shepherd. Last night we were discussing the division of household goods. Many of the things we have belonged to Sam's mother and grandmother and he wants them -- which is all right with me. Out of the blue -- and in the presence of the children -- he blurted out, "I want to make it clear that I am keeping Gupper (the dog) and you can have the kids."

I always knew Sam was an insensitive clod but this really got to me. The children looked so rejected I broke down and bawled. Of course I planned on taking the children, but hearing him put it so bluntly right in front of them was too much. Comment, please. -- Tears In The Valley

Dear Val: What's there to say except good riddance? On Father's Day I hope Gupper sends Sam a nice card.

Dear Ann Landers: Since when is school supposed to be entertainment? Who decided school is only for football and driver training? As a teacher with 27 years of experience, I maintain that school is for learning.

Parents must teach their children to work. It cannot be done by teachers. It is appalling that so many high school graduates are functionally illiterate and unemployable.

Dear D.M.: I agree school is not supposed to be entertainment, but I always learned more and worked harder when I had teachers who were lively, tuned-in and turned-on. Long after I forget the date of the Battle of Hastings, I'll remember the philosophy and inspiration provided by my most insightful and interesting teachers.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

NEW YORK (AP) — The way it looked on national television, it was all over after the 12th round. As many as 50 million people in the TV audience knew Earnie Shavers would lose. Muhammad Ali said he knew it.

Then, why didn't Shavers know it?

"I thought I was ahead. My corner told me I was ahead," Shavers said after losing his only shot at the world heavyweight title in a 15-round decision to Ali Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

"I threw a couple of pretty good shots, but I didn't hit him real hard. I was trying to save myself," said Shavers. "I didn't go after him because I thought he might have been faking it."

The simple fact of the matter was that after the 12th, the TV audience had been informed by NBC — which was revealing the referee's and judges' decision round-by-round — that Ali had eight check-marks on his side of the caard. Shavers' only chance was a knockout.

Over on Ali's side of the ring, they were keeping track. Trainer Angelo Dundee had arranged with Eddie Hrica, a Baltimore-area fight promoter, to shuttle between the dressing room TV set and ringside to keep tabs on how things were going.

No such arrangements had been made on Shavers' side of the ring, and no one in the Garden audience of 14,613 was aware of the cards. After some discussion, John F.X. Condon, head of Garden publicity, said it was decided not to transmit the NBC information to the live audience or to reporters. The New York State Athletic Commission had recommended against it as being possibly disruptive, Condon said.

"But we didn't tell Ali," Dundee said. "We didn't want him to know. He might have let up, and you can't do that against a guy like Shavers."

Ali, however, said he had been told at one point during the fight that he was ahead, and that he would have thought so anyway. He looked like a fighter trying to hang onto his lead in the 13th and 14th rounds, which went to Shavers on the cards of the two judges and the referee, Johnny LoBianco.

"I took some punches that would have knocked any man out," said Ali, his face swollen from the beating he had taken from Shavers, considered one of boxing's all-time hardest hitters.

"Hurt me? Yeah, he hurt me a couple of times," Ali said. "I was almost knocked out two or three times. I was out on my feet. But the experts told you right. I can take a punch ... I knew I had it won ... I am the greatest fighter of all time."

After the 12th round, the two judges' cards had Ali ahead 8-4, and LoBianco had it 8-3 with one even. That's when Shavers, who had never gone past 10 rounds in his career, came on strong.

Shavers won the 13th on four solid rights to Ali's head, while the champion danced, covered up and hardly threw a punch. The 14th went to Shavers in a more spectacular fashion.

Shavers came out swinging those lumberjack fists that have scored 19 first-round knockouts in 54 victories (52 knockouts in all). He caught Ali in the corner and a mighty right landed.

Ali's feet went out from under him, and the count on the auditorium loudspeaker went to "two" before LoBianco waved off the count, saying it was a slip. But Ali was in trouble.

"My corner told me I was three rounds ahead on points," said Shavers. "I knew Ali was hurt, but I couldn't tell whether he was faking it. He's good at that. He always fakes it when you hit him."

The 15th round — by which time Shavers was expected to have been showered, dressed and on his way back home to the farm in Warren, Ohio — was a slugfest. Not since Ali-Joe Frazier in Manila was there such a round in heavyweight boxing.

Ali had Shavers in the corner, pounding combinations, hooking off the jab, and Shavers was wobbling. Both fighters were exhausted. Shavers found one more punch, and it saved him from a knockout.

He threw a looping left that connected squarely with Ali's forehead. The punch still had enough to rock the champion — "It almost knocked me out," said Ali — and it bought Shavers time.

"Another 30 seconds, and I would have knocked him out," said Ali.

Purina buys the Arena

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralston Purina Co., owner of the St. Louis Blues National Hockey League team, has also purchased the Arena building as a home for the hockey club.

R. Hal Dean, chairman and chief executive of Ralston, told a news conference Thursday that $500,000 already has been spent to upgrade the building, which will now be known as the Checkerdome.

Dean said estimates are being sought to determine how much it would cost to air condition the building and turn it into an all-season facility. He said the firm is looking into the possiblity of moving a World Team Tennis franchise into the building.

Acquisition of the property from the Cousins Mortgage and Equity Investment Corp. of Atlanta cost about $8.8 million, Dean said.

Crippled Bulldogs and Espey-less Cats meet at Dexter tonight

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

The biggest job for the Sikeston Bulldogs tonight will be holding down the talented Dexter offense, which has scored points this season at an average over 30 per game. They'll have to do it without five defensive starters.

Linebacker Glynn Felton and defensive end Alfie White joined comrades Mike Lasater, Scott Heeb and John Greer on the Bulldog injury list for the Northern Division battle tonight with the offensive-minded Bearcats at Dexter.

Felton and White, who both start on offense as well as shining on defense, were victims of last week's 6-6 draw at Charleston. Felton suffered a banged up knee and will miss two more games besides the Dexter battle. White's knee injury is less serious but will keep him out of action this week.

Lasater and Heeb are on the comeback route from their injuries, but cornerback John Greer underwent surgery Wednesday on his knee. The senior will miss the rest of the season.

White's injury won't cause as many headaches, however, largely because of the return of David Willis at defensive end. While Willis takes his old position again, Dwight Mills, who replaced him two weeks ago, will now get White's job temporarily. Senior Randy Meyers, a 202-pounder, replaces White at offensive tackle.

Meanwhile, Dexter coach Tom Thrower's troops will be relatively injury free. All-conference quarterback Lance Espey is the only casualty among the Bearcats for tonight's game.

Espey, who suffered a broken collarbone during the fourth quarter of last week's 36-7 win over Illmo-Scott City, will be out for at least this week and next week and probably more. The injury is scheduled to be re-examined in two weeks, at which time more will be known about when the southpaw passer can return to action.

But Thrower has a pair of capable replacements in senior Denny Jarrell and junior Jim Jarrell, who are not related to each other. Denny will get the starting nod on the basis of his limited varsity experience at QB as a sophomore, but Jim will see action, too. Thrower said he hopes to make a decision on who his number one signal caller will be on the basis of tonight's play.

Both Jarrells can and will put the ball up. "They're both average high school quarterbacks," Thrower pointed out, saying that only the presence of the talented Espey has kept them from playing.

Smith said he couldn't tell what the Bulldogs' attitude would be coming off last week's letdown at Charleston, where the Bluejays beat SHS every place but on the scoreboard. "But they'll play better than they did at Charleston," Smith promised.

Indians go for fourth straight

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Off to its best start since 1969, Southeast Missouri State University travels to Russellville, Ark., Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game with Arkansas Tech University.

The Indians go into the contest with a 3-1 record, their best start since they were 4-0 in 1969. Arkansas Tech is 1-2.

"On paper they have the best offense we are going to see this year," said Southeast Missouri State's head coach, Jim Lohr. "They have four or five guys on their team that can outrun anyone we've got. If both teams lined up for a 100-yard dash, the best we could finish would be fifth or sixth."

Providing most of that speed for the Wonder Boys will be sophomore running backs Garry Compton of Pine Bluff, Ark., and James Imes of Clemmons, N.C., and split end Theodis Williams, a senior from Little Rock, Ark.

Quarterbacking the Wonder Boys will be Sylvester Forrest, a freshman from Earle, Ark. Also a speedster, Forrest is a threat to run the ball. He has a strong throwing arm but seem to have a tendency to throw interceptions. He had three picked off in the Wonder Boys' opening season loss to the University of Arkansas – Pine Bluff.

Coming off fine offensive performances last Saturday against the University of Evansville in a game which SEMO State won 27-22, will be running backs Jack Gokin and Bill White.

Gokin, a senior from St. Louis, ran for 130 yards in 15 carries and two touchdowns while White, a freshman from Rock Hill, picked up 71 yards in 15 carries. The Indians gained 276 yards on the ground against Evansville.

One element of the game which Lohr feels his team must improve on is defense, a disappointment in last week's game. "Last week they didn't play with any enthusiasm," the head coach said. "What we have to do against Arkansas Tech is beat them on the line of scrimmage," he added. "If some of that speed gets into our backfield, we may not have a chance to catch them."

Injuries may play a key role as the Tribe has six players on the injured list and one who is questionable.

Also sure to miss the game is flanker David Gross, a senior from Cape Girardeau, who left the Evansville game near the end of the first half. Gross has torn ligaments in his left knee and will have surgery Friday.

WASHINGTON — Offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray were ordered to report to the New England Patriots by next Tuesday or be declared ineligible for the remainder of the 1977 season.

The NFL Player-Club Relations Committee, after 12 hours of testimony and deliberation on a grievance brought by the league on behalf of the Patriots, found that there is "a binding, legally enforceable contract" between the players and the team. The two had left camp in the last week of the preseason in a dispute that started in 1974.

Gura hurls K.C. to 100th win

But as far as the rest of the Kansas City Royals are concerned, Gura is just the latest recipient of the Gong award.

"He's always been a good late-season pitcher," remarked Herzog after Gura, with last-inning relief help from Doug Bird, hurled the American League West champs to their 100th victory of the season with a 6-3 win over the California Angels.

"He's done a pretty good job spot-starting this year. He had a wild spell there, but overall he's done the job."

The left-handed Gura, 8-5, was making his first start since Aug. 4—and exactly one year after he gave the Royals their first division title with a 4-0 victory over the Oakland A's.

In control from the start, Gura retired the first 14 batters he faced before Dave Chalk blooped a single to center with two out in the fifth inning.

But the southpaw made himself the prime candidate for the Gong — the team award for the player who makes the most embarrassing play in a victory—when his pickoff throw in the eighth inning eluded first baseman Pete LaCock by at least 15 feet.

"It looks like the first time this year that I've got it," he sighed with a smile. "But I guess I might as well go all the way.

"I never even should have thrown over there. With a 6-1 lead, who cares what the runner is doing? It was a mental mistake. And I hate to make mental mistakes."

But it was one of the few mistakes the Royals, playing reserves all the way, made as they banged out 14 hits off Wayne Simpson, 6-12, and Balor Moore. Every starter in the Kansas City lineup got a hit, as the Royals built a 3-0 lead in the first and never trailed. Rookie Clint Hurdle led the offense with a solo home run and run-scoring single.

The triumph made the Royals the first major league team to reach 100 victories this season and enabled them to tie the New York Mets' record for most wins in one year by an expansion team.

"No. 100. We wanted to get it at home, not in Oakland," grinned Herzog, whose team had followed an eight-game winning streak by dropping four in a row to the lowly A's.

"We finally got over the top. But we could have done it out there. We should have won 102 by now."

Improving Tigers looking for first victory at Tempe

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Both winless Missouri and 20th-ranked Arizona State are hoping to "put it all together" when they clash Saturday night in a non-conference football game at Sun Devil Stadium, where a sellout crowd of 58,000 is expected.

Missouri, 0-3 and riddled by injuries at key positions, might be a little more desperate, but Arizona State, 2-0, is just as anxious.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio, a former assistant and collegiate player at ASU, has been pleased with both his offensive and defensive units this season, although never in the same game. Arizona State Coach Frank Kush has faced the same dilemma.

The Sun Devils enter this week's contest 3-point favorites, but Kush was complaining about the defense. As a matter of fact, Missouri's coaching staff wasn't too pleased with its defense, either.

ASU squeaked past Oregon State, 33-31, last Saturday night at home, although Kush said the "real disappointing factor was the defense."

The big question mark, according to Kush, is the defensive tackle positions. "We try to do a lot of stunting, but the tackles are not getting into position to meet the offensive linemen who are going to block our linebackers," he said.

So, this week his staff put the tackles through some special drills in an effort to correct the problem.

"When we get them both (offense and defense) together we're going to be okay," said Kush. "But if some night they're both off, we're in for big trouble."

Even though the Missouri Tigers are off to their worst start since 1956, they've been making substantial progress.

SHS spikers topple EP for first victory

EAST PRAIRIE — After three consecutive losses, the ever-improving Sikeston girl's volleyball team won their first match via a two-out-of-three victory over East Prairie.

Dawn Hurley and freshman Rochelle Patterson were keys to the win according to coach Janie Merrick. Patterson, late of the junior varsity squad, was a pleasant surprise, especially in the spike category.

"We had more success in spikes than we'd ever had," said Merrick after the hard fought Sikeston win.

East Prairie knew they were going to have a battle on their hands after they pulled out an 18-16 first game win. The young spikers from SHS then came on to win the second game 16-14 and the match with a 15-11 triumph.

Even though the win was a big one, Merrick felt that her team "still had a lot of things to work on." Setting up for the spike was the greatest of these.

The junior varsity also went on to victory after a tough first game loss. East Prairie came up with a 15-13 win followed by a 15-3 Sikeston triumph. The young Bulldogs then won the rubber game of the match by a score of 15-6.

The volleyballers will be home for their next match against a scrappy crew from Bloomfield. The game will be played in the Sikeston Fieldhouse with a 6:30 p.m. tipoff time Monday evening.

Several members of The Daily Standard prognostication panel seem to be living charmed lives as the season reaches the halfway point. But four, maybe five, games promise to lower percentages this week because they are so hard to pick.

Our standings:

	Right	Wrong	Pct.
FORB	31	3	88
CHIEF	28	6	79
WHALE	25	9	72
ZIG	19	7	71

The veterans of the panel, the Forb and Chief, are running some 20 per cent ahead of their respective paces of a year ago. Whether the factors contributing to this success are based in experience or luck has been a topic of much discussion around the office on these past fall evenings. The rookies have no past predicting patterns to refer to, so we must deduce that this year is simply easier to pick than the past. (In actuality,the rookies are operating at a pace five to 10 per cent ahead of the marks recorded by the panel veterans in '76.)

CAPE CENTRAL AT PADUCAH-TILGHMAN -- A tough one to start with. The Tigers, with a win over Vianney, have established themselves as top contenders for the Northern title, along with Jackson and Poplar Bluff. Sophomore kicker Steve Williams has proved to be an outstanding asset to his team. His 40-plus punting average kept the Vianney troops in trouble throughout last week's game. The grit and determination of the Tigers may be enough (Zig thinks so), but the others don't think so.

FORB: Paducah by 3,
WHALE: Paducah by 17 and
ZIG: Cape Central by 3.

PERRYVILLE AT CHARLESTON -- Another tough one to pick, especially since quarterback Clark Quertermous' status isn't known. Charleston has a solid defense and plenty of speed while Perryville has struggled for the last two weeks. All agree the Jays will win, but not by much.

CHIEF: Charleston by 2,
FORB: Charleston by 1,
WHALE: Charleston by 8 and
ZIG: Charleston by 13.

POPLAR BLUFF AT JACKSON -- The Mules really arrived last week at Perryville and they were preseason picks to win the conference title. Jackson has run up some big scores over some unproven competition. None the less, the three of panel goes with coach Paul Webber's wishbone attack in the biggest game of the night.

CHIEF: Jackson by 6,
FORB: Jackson by 7,
WHALE: Poplar Bluff by 5 and
ZIG: Jackson by 18.

PARAGOULD, ARKANSAS AT KENNETT -- It'll seem like a home away from home for the Golden Eagles from just across the border. The Arkansas school was forced to use the Kennett stadium for its home games while some repairs were being made at theirs. Kennett could use any edge available and they won't even have a total home field edge in this one. Look for the Indians to lose again.

CHIEF: Paragould by 9,
FORB: Paragould by 13,
WHALE: Paragould by 10 and
ZIG: Kennett by 6.

EAST PRAIRIE AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- A good one to watch if you like upsets. Nobody had the guts to go with the improving Eagles against Caruthersville, but all feel the game will be close. Caruthersville has yet to beat a good team and the East Prairie squad will give them a tussle.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 8,
FORB: Caruthersville by 12,
WHALE: Caruthersville by 10 and
ZIG: Caruthersville by 5.

ILLMO-SCOTT CITY AT CHAFFEE -- Another good place for our panelists to stub their toes. Scott City stumbled badly last week against Dexter and hasn't shown a bit of offense since their opener with hapless South Pemiscot. Chaffee certainly isn't the team it was a year ago and won't be able to move the ball on the Ram defense.

CHIEF: I-SC by 7,
FORB: I-SC by 9,
WHALE: I-SC by 10 and
ZIG: I-SC by 13.

HAYTI AT CORNING, ARKANSAS -- The Arkansas school has quite a history for football success, although little is known about their team this year. Hayti, quite simply, is building for the future.

CHIEF: Corning by 25,
FORB: Corning by 31,
WHALE: Corning by 28 and
ZIG: Corning by 16.

MALDEN AT SOUTH PEMISCOT -- The Wave are improving, game by game, and should handle the Bulldogs easily. Jimmie Kilgore may score enough to beat South Pem by himself.

CHIEF: Malden by 30,
FORB: Malden by 36,
WHALE: Malden by 25 and
ZIG: Malden by 30.

PORTAGEVILLE AT DONIPHAN -- The Bulldogs may have the area's best running attack and they certainly will score big in this one. Look for it to come down between Portageville and I-SC for the Southern title, when the going gets tough.

CHIEF: Portageville by 35,
FORB: Portageville by 33,
WHALE: Portageville by 30 and
ZIG: Portageville by 24.

SIKESTON AT DEXTER -- How do you call this one? The Bulldogs died a week ago at Charleston, losing to a team that should have been beaten. Sikeston, quite frankly, doesn't have enough talent to win without a total effort. It is doubtful if they can stop Guilliams, despite the absence of Espey, and if they don't it may be a long, long season. On the other hand, a convincing Bulldog victory could add some luster to their reputation -- a reputation that seemed to be established against Perryville, but torn down a week later by a Charleston team that outplayed Sikeston on both sides of the line. Because of the injured Dexter quarterback, the panel stays with Sikeston, but not by much.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 4,
FORB: Sikeston by 2,
WHALE: Sikeston by 4 and
ZIG: Sikeston by 1.

BOXING

Ali was showing every one of his 35 years at the end, but he also showed his tremendous courage when, after being sent across the ring by a smashing right in the final round, he came back with a flurry of head punches that almost put Shavers down.

Judges Eva Shain and Tony Castellano each had it nine rounds to six for Ali, while referee Johnny LoBianco saw it 9-5-1 for the champion.

The Associated Press had it 10-5 for Ali.

GOLF

NAPA, Calif. — Dale Douglass, whose last tournament title came in 1970, shot an opening-round 66 for the first-round lead in Napa's annual pro golf tour event and was pursued closely Larry Ziegler and Mac McLendon, with 67s. All three played on Silverado's South course, in the opening round of the $200,000 tournament.

WORKSOP, England — Peter Butler birdied three holes in a row before the gale-force winds reached full strength and, with a two-under-par 69, assumed a solid three-stroke lead in the second round of the $70,000 British Masters golf tournament.

Australian Graham Marsh, winner of the Heritage Classic in the U.S. earlier this year, was alone in second after a 72 and a 142 total.

Economic and social problems beset once-calm smaller towns

Part I — The Problems

EDITORS' NOTE: Crime, pollution and government red tape are no longer the preserve of big cities. They've reached the little places, the small towns. Here, in the first of a two-part series, is a look at some of the wrenching difficulties now facing many smaller American cities.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

But in more and more small cities and towns, it's the city halls themselves that are finding they are unequipped to fight increasingly complex economic and social problems that are threatening their once-tranquil way of life.

Officials of those small towns and medium-sized cities complain that the larger cities are getting all the attention — and money — while their struggles are going largely unnoticed.

In recent months:

—Robert Marko, a citizen of Ambia, Ind., population 259, blanketed Washington with letters pleading that his town is being forced by the federal government to undertake a sewage treatment system that its mostly poor and elderly citizens can't possibly afford.

Four small towns, led by Worcester, Vt., sued the federal Economic Development Administration because they claimed they were being excluded from aid under the $4 billion public works job program. The four towns won a $535,000 settlement in federal court.

—Jerald Peters, part-time mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says he faces the prospect of managing a town with unemployment problems as serious as the worst of American slums. The city's immediate job crisis, he says, is largely due to the Carter administration's decision to close down nearby Kincheloe Air Force Base, the area's most important employer, in September.

"We expect a 40 per cent unemployment rate after the closing. The prospects have been very, very bad," says Peters, whose only hope is to persuade the Michigan state government to make use of part of the vacated Air Force facility.

For 20 years, census figures have shown a mass migration from big cities to smaller towns. City residents have hoped to find the country picket fences, the homey smiles and the friendly hellos — or at least an escape from crime, high taxes, dirt and other urban hassles.

But, economic or social changes that larger cities usually can absorb or adjust to have often proved cataclysmic to smaller towns: a factory shutting down, a new shopping mall opening nearby, or a federal grant lost because the city manager didn't know about it.

Some small cities are growing too fast and don't have the know-how to plan for it. Others are shrinking, losing population and jobs, and gaining older and poorer people requiring higher levels of government spending to sustain them. Still others have mayors and managers that lose federal and state aid because they don't have the expertise to comply with complex and often expensive grant regulations.

In the past year, the National League of Cities surveyed smaller cities to find out their most serious problems. The responses, in order, were: inability to meet requirements of federal applications and programs; budget problems; water storage and treatment; growth and land use planning; housing; law enforcement; stagnant tax base; lack of communication between city and citizens; sewage treatment, and state laws that infringe on city interests.

With a declining population, a decaying downtown area and a property tax rate that has tripled since 1970, "We're going to have some financial failures before this is all over and Lynn is definitely a prime candidate," says one Massachusetts state official who asked not to be identified.

A thriving medium-sized industrial town before World War II, Lynn was the nation's shoemaker, with 103 factories. It now has two factories and about 100 empty loft buildings scarring its downtown. The rest of those factories were forced out of business by foreign competition.

"Small towns that were just potato fields are turning into central cities. The range of responsibilities for officials of these cities is much greater than it was," says Dr. George Sternlieb of Rutgers University, an expert in the problems of small cities.

"The age of the shopping center is killing those towns. There has been a decline in their economic function. On the other hand, a small city in the prairie maintains its market role as a retail center," he says.

Plainfield, N.J., illustrates his point. Tepper's, a 100-year old local department store, went out of business a few months ago. In general, the city's downtown has had trouble luring shoppers for years. Most people prefer to shop on a nearby highway packed with convenience stores and shopping plazas.

On the other hand, many Midwestern prairie towns are suffering the urban ill known as redlining, an affliction normally associated with big-city slums. Redlining is when banks and other lenders refuse to invest money in an area they think is declining, thereby hastening the decline.

"Disinvestment is not solely an urban phenomenon. Rural America is subject to the same process with probably the same effects," says a 1976 study of housing and business investment patterns in Nebraska by the University of Nebraska's Center for Applied Urban Research.

The study found that "communities throughout Nebraska with populations under 1,000 and without a savings and loan association close by have the most difficulty." Home mortgage seekers in smaller towns are often required to pay higher interest rates, pay the loans back sooner and make larger down-payments, or aren't given loans at all.

Even communties like Naples, Maine, are not immune from problems like overcrowded schools. Nancy Bushell, one of three selectmen on the local council in this town of 1,800 says an influx of poorer people moved into new homes built with federally backed mortgages in the early 1970s.

As a result the tiny elementary and junior high school "is bulging," she says, and classes have had to be held in churches, armories and hallways. More than $500,000 of the city's $650,000 budget is taken up by schools.

In desperation, the community which lies on Sebago Lake north of Portland placed a moratorium on all new housing construction two years ago. The new housing ban was lifted this year but Naples, like other Maine towns, remains nervous over the consequences of unwanted rapid growth.

They are worried, says Maine Municipal Association executive director John L. Salisbury, over "those who arrive who want, or think they want, the amenities of a rural life. But when they come, it means they need all the expensive services: sewers, schools, sidewalks, the works."

Longer-term economic forces are at work in other small cities like Ashland, Wis. In the early 1950s, the town located on the shore of Lake Superior had more than 20,000 people and prospered with the Great Lakes shipping, mining and timber industries. With most of that regional business depressed, Ashland's population is down to less than 10,000. It has a chronically high unemployment rate and is trying desperately to lure summer tourists to its scenic location.

The average Ashland resident makes only $7,000 a year but must pay high local taxes because, although the population is low, it is a sprawling community and municipal services are expensive.

"This has been a neglected community for years," says 30-year-old mayor Bruce A. Hendrickson. "The problems we are dealing with are reflective of those of small cities around the country."

Carter profile low as Lance departs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three small incidents added up this week to a large suggestion that President Carter, at least for now, is done with publicly embracing Bert Lance.

On Monday, when the resigned director of the Office of Management and Budget returned to Washington for a quick round of farewells, there were these companion developments:

—The White House revealed, but only in response to questions, that Lance had left the federal payroll two days earlier. A spokesman said Carter had written his friend a personal letter that would not be made public.

—A handful of reporters were invited to Lance's old office at 3:30 p.m. that day to attend a farewell reception he gave for friends, acquaintances and erstwhile employes. However, uniformed police of the Executive Protective Service, which guards the White House complex, barred the invited reporters from entering, saying they had not been cleared through proper security channels.

—Later, a Lance emissary passed word to news organizations that the presidential presence at the Lance party had been recorded by White House staff photographers, who might be prepared to release photos for publication. But calls to the White House produced word that the photos had been taken "for historical purposes only" and would not be made public.

But perhaps all this was nothing more than coincidence.

As for Carter's letter last Saturday in which the President privately accepted Lance's resignation, effective immediately, there was cause to wonder Monday what had happened to it. Robert Dietsch, the OMB's top spokesman, said he asked Lance about it and was told the letter had not been received.

Inasmuch as the Carter letter had to travel only about the length of a football field, from the Oval Office to the OMB director's office next door, there was speculation that the President had disdained the interoffice mail system in favor of the Postal Service.

Carter's emotional trauma at presiding over the departure of his friend was evident to anyone who watched the televised news conference at which the Lance resignation was announced.

Unnoticed, perhaps, was Carter's impatience at ending the news conference ordeal, which produced nothing but questions about Lance. After the session had been in progress about 35 minutes, the President looked at his wristwatch and announced, "Thank you very much." Then he strode from the room, abandoning his custom of engaging in departing small talk with reporters in the front rows.

Of course, Carter also abandoned the tradition of waiting for the senior wire service reporter to end the conference by shouting, "Thank you, Mr. President."

The last time a President did not wait for a press corps "thank you" was when Richard M. Nixon, barraged with questions about Watergate, cut short a news conference in 1973.

Article by local pastor in The New Age

"Pastor, Is Reincarnation a Reality?", an article by the Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist Church, is included in the October issue of The New Age Magazine.

The New Age is the official publication of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, Southern Jurisdiction, United States of America, Washington, D. C., for which Dr. Fulbright has written articles several times previously.

The article on reincarnation is based on a sermon ofthe same title Dr. Fulbright preached to the local congregation on Nov. 21, 1976, and parallels a Pastor Speaks column he wrote in a Sunday edition of The Daily Standard early this year.

The case of the thwarted bargain hunter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Rosie operated a ladies' shop that was so exclusive it rarely even had customers in it. Suffering from a severe case of no business, Rosie decided to jazz up things with a little promotion. She advertised that she would sell a mink stole for a mere $25 to the first customer who entered her shop on a specified day.

When the designated day arrived -- so did Harold. First in the shop, he plunked down $25 on a counter and demanded the mink.

"O.K., lady", he said, "let me have it."

And Rosie did – with both barrels.

"You've got some nerve coming in here," she told him. "This is a shop for women where I sell feminine things to females. If I wanted to trade with men, I'd sell cigars. Since the advertisement was obviously intended only for ladies," she concluded, "take your 25 bucks and get going."

Harold, however, considered the stole a steal for $25 and took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Harold to take advantage of Rosie's advertised sale?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an advertisement is clear, definite and explicit in all details, as in this case, leaving nothing open for further negotiations, it constitutes a binding offer. When accepted, concluded the judge, it cannot be changed, unmentioned house rules notwithstanding.

Submit a crazy, looney or odd statute or local law to Jack Strauss, 205 E 42nd St., N.Y., N.Y. 10017 and receive $5 if used. More than one submission welcome.

Fictitious essay becomes a reality

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Suzie Mages wrote a fictitious essay for class last week about a girl who gets kidnaped and killed. Now Suzie is missing.

The 4-foot-6, 65-pound girl was last seen Sunday at a fast-food restaurant, talking to a man described as having long hair.

State and local police searched the woods and streams near this Dallas suburb Tuesday for signs of the girl. The search was called off until daybreak today.

Del Mages says he doesn't think his daughter's essay had anything to do with the disappearance.

Bring a big appetite. But don't bring a lot of money.
